Roosevelt Asks Both Parties to Study Question Of Finnish Aid

Believes Partisan Politics Has No Part in Problem

OFFERS NO PLAN

Confers With Taylor on Peace but Gives No Specific Orders

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he had asked congressional leaders of both parties to work out the problem of giving assistance to Finland.

The chief executive had disclosed Tuesday that he was discussing the matter of aid to Finland with the state department.

Asked at his press conference today whether the conversations had resulted in any decisions he replied in the negative.

He went on to say, however, that the question of providing assistance to the Finns ought not to become on cf partisan politics. In other words, he said, the Russian attack on Finland, the destitution of large numbers of people, and the need for maintaining Finnish independence, should not be a party matter over here.

He said he understood that at his suggestion congressional leaders were trying to get together to see what might be done.

But, asserting that he had not the faintest idea of specific steps that might be taken, he turned aside questions about whether aid might be extended in the form of loans or the selling of the army's Garand rifles to the Finns at a nominal sum.

Confers With Taylor

Mr. Roosevelt had as one of his callers today Myron Taylor, whom he appointed as his personal representative to the Vatican to work for peace.

In response to questions, the chief executive said that he did not contemplate giving Taylor any specific instructions but would talk over with him the whole situation.

A reporter inquired whether Taylor was acquainted with the objectives of the chief executive's peace proposals. Mr. Roosevelt said there were no objectives, that he talked with people all the time about ideals of peace. But those ideals can not be put down point by point, he declared.

The matter, he said, is too didactic.

Newspapers, he said, have to be didactic but that in his own mind he was not. He said he knew that fact spoiled a story but it couldn't be helped.

SHIPPING SUPPLIES

Paris—(AP)—Spain, Italy and southeastern European countries are shipping war materials to embattled Finland through France, an official spokesman said today.

"The material from these countries is considerable," he said, adding that volunteers also are en route from them to join the Finnish forces.

Dog Walks Ashore From Ice After 7 Hours of Efforts to 'Save' Him

Chicago — (AP) — A big German shepherd dog nonchalantly disappointed his would-be rescuers and their cheering section today. He saved himself.

The dog, prompted by that something that sometimes prompts humans to do the same, decided to explore the ice on Lake Michigan near the navy pier yesterday.

Police, members of the coast guard, anti-cruelty society agents and a large crowd of onlookers in their best "here, doggie, here" manner, baited with meat, tried seven hours to lure the dog off the thin ice. The dog vanished into the fog at dark—outward bound.

When he was seen again today a member of the Polar Bear Swimming club hurried down to volunteer to swim to his rescue. Agents of the anti-cruelty society and police went into a huddle on ideas. A crowd gathered. Then the dog calmly walked ashore.

STILL SEEK MEN ENTOMBED IN WEST VIRGINIA MINE

Rescue workers slowed up by dead air struggled toward 91 men trapped more than two miles underground by an explosion in the Bartley No. 1 mine near Bartley, W. Va. British Planes In Flights Over Reich Districts

Nazi Aircraft Also Reported in Hops Over English Territory

London—(AP)—The royal air force, engaged with German aviation in a tit-for-tat war of feeler thrusts, was reported today to have made successful reconnaissance flights last night over western and northwestern Germany and over seaplane bases in Helgoland bight.

The latest operations were reported in an air ministry communique.

A German Heinkel plane fled seaward from the Yorkshire coast today when British planes swooped toward it.

Machine-gun fire was heard and there were scattered reports of "considerable air activity" over Yorkshire towns.

Another plane, believed also to be German, appeared at a great height over the Thames estuary and was challenged with anti-air-craft fire from both the Essex and Kent sides.

What was described as a Heinkel bomber flew high over the Suffolk coast and disappeared in a southeasterly direction when defense batteries opened fire.

See German Threat

Germany's arerial inspection of almost the whole British east coast was regarded by air force strategists as a threat of more destructive visits to come.

In a series of raids at six points from southeast Scotland to the English channel yesterday—the most widespread of the war so far—German fliers attacked only one merchant ship and three trawlers.

They made no attempt to bomb land objectives.

Air experts concluded that the primary object was to photograph the seaboard as a guide for future waves of bombers, perhaps as preparation for intensive raids on British docks and shipyards.

Britain apparently was preparing also to deal blow for blow in any intensified warfare.

Japanese Apologize To American Woman

Shanghai — (AP) — Japenese naval authorities today visited Miss Frances Donaldson of Louisville, Ky., and apologized for an attack on her by a Japanese sentry.

They acknowledged truth of the American business woman's report that on Dec. 20 a sentry struck her with his fist when she crossed a bridge into the International Settlement, walking inadvertently on what the Japanese consider the "wrong side" of the street.

Miss Donaldson accepted the Japanese apology. She represents an embroidery exporting concern.

Two Chicago Jurors Confess Taking Money for Acquittals; Alleged 'Fixer' Also Is Held

Chicago—(AP)—Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, announced today two women jurors confessed they had received $150 for voting to acquit Samuel Orlando and Joseph Vinci of conspiracy to violate the election laws.

He said the women were Mrs. Martha Aumond, 36, mother of two children, and Mrs. Lillian Connors, 51. Also under arrest was Marvin Olson, 38, whom Crowley accused of arranging the "fix."

Orlando, Democratic captain of the 52nd precinct of the eleventh ward, and Vinci, his assistant, were freed by a criminal court jury Dec. 20. The jury was composed of six men and six women. Women won the right to serve on juries last August.

Captain Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police reported that Mrs. Aumond received a carton of cigarets and $100 on Christmas day. Mrs. Connors, he said, got $50 the day she was impaneled.

Outlines Case

Crowley announced this resume of the case:

The women said the day the jury was completed they were approached in the criminal courts building by Olson, who took them to a tavern nearby.

There they were joined by a lawyer, who said to Olson: "Here's $20. Show the girls a good time." After the lawyer left, Crowley said, Olson put $50 in Mrs. Connors' purse.

The prosecutor said Mrs. Connors stated that Olson told her: "This is for the good job you did in that bookie case," adding: "There will be a lot more for you in this case, maybe a grand or two. All you have to do is vote 'guilty' on the first ballot or two, and then vote 'not guilty.'"

In her statement, Mrs. Conners did not explain Olson's reference to the bookie case."

"Gift" Brought To Home

Mrs. Aumond, Crowley said, admitted that on Christmas day a man she never had seen before came to her home, wished her a merry

Launch Drive on Labor Racketeers

Group Formed to Bring Slayers of Chicagoan To Justice

Chicago—(AP)—Marinus Hvid alive was simply another small garage owner who couldn't get along with the union.

But Marinus Hvid dead represented a cause celebre today for a public-spirited drive to wipe out once and for all the racketeering element in Chicago's labor movement.

A special committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce has been formed for the single purpose of bringing to justice the men who beat him fatally the night of Dec. 28.

Fifty-six business, civic and religious leaders have formed another group to attack the problem of labor violence in its broader aspects.

The Affiliated Garages of Chicago, an organization to which Hvid once belonged, has offered $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of his slayers.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney is directing a grand jury investigation of Local 727 of the Auto Livery Chauffeurs, Drivers and Garage Helpers union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, and its association with the garage owners organization.

And Captain Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall police district put three lieutenants and twelve detectives to work on the case.

Marinus Hvid, 55 years old, the father of four children, was the thirty-second person whose death has been attributed to labor violence in Chicago and its suburbs during the last nine years.

Woman Attorney Defends U. S. Board in Going Beyond Evidence in Some Instances

Washington—(AP)—A woman attorney for the national labor relations board declared today that she thought it "perfectly legitimate" for the board to go beyond the evidence in labor disputes for "certain types of information."

However, Miss Margaret McDuff Farmer told the house committee investigating the N. L. R. B. that offers of additional information should be accepted with equal readiness from both employers and unions.

Representative Halleck (R-Ind.) said that, in the case of the Sorg Paper company of Middletown, Ohio, Philip G. Phillips, N. L. R. B. regional director, condemned the general principle of allowing an employer to offer testimony after a case was closed.

"The Sorg company had attempted to offer a petition from some employes of the plant asking that they be recognized as a bargaining unit," Halleck said. "Do you think, Miss Farmer, that there should be any different rule applied to such an offer by a respondent (the company) as against such an offer by a complainant (the union)?"

"No, I do not," the witness replied.

"That is, what is sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander?"

"I think so," Miss Farmer said.

Miss Farmer acknowledged that the board had reopened the record in the case of the Elliot Mill company of Seattle, Wash., while declining to admit the Sorg petition.

"But those cases have to be decided on different circumstances," she remarked.

Defense Fund Bill Is Given O.K. in House

Members Reject Schafer Move to Send It Back To Committee

FEW VOTES OPPOSED

No Roll Call Taken Before Measure Is Forwarded to Senate

Washington—(AP)—The house passed by an overwhelming vote today a $264,611,252 emergency defense appropriation for use of the army, navy, coast guard and federal bureau of investigation.

Just before the final voice vote, the house rejected a motion by Representative Schafer (R-Wis.) to send the bill back to the appropriations committee with instructions to write in a prohibition against using any of the funds for construction, maintenance or operation of ships engaged in patrol of what he called the "300-mile Welles neutrality zone."

(Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, was instrumental in bringing about the Pan-American agreement declaring the zone in existence.)

There were only a few scattered noes when the question was put on final passage and no roll call was demanded. The measure now goes to the senate.

Roosevelt Proposal

The bill represented President Roosevelt's recommendation for emergency expenditures for national defense and neutrality. The money is for the remainder of the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

The budget bureau first recommended a bill providing $271,000,000. The committee cut this to $267,197,908 and a further reduction of $2,586,656 was made by amendment today.

Shortly before offering his recommital motion, Schafer failed in an attempt to amend the bill directly to prohibit use of the money for the neutrality patrol, contending it was established at the Panama conference "in clear violation" of both international and domestic law.

An amendment by Representative Taber (R-N. Y.) to reduce the army's fund for four months of winter maneuvers in the south from $18,000,000 to $9,000,000 was defeated however, 33 to 50.

Fails to Cut Time

Taber argued that two months was enough. Representative Lambertson (R-Kans.) suggested that the gathering together of two army corps of troops, as the general staff proposes, would lead the American people to believe this country was preparing for war rather than defense.

Representative Woodrum (D-Va.), managing the bill on the floor, said he preferred the opinions of General John J. Pershing and General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, as to how long the maneuvers should be, to Taber's or his own.

In a related field, Armiral Harold R. Stark told the house naval committee that, if special legislation were found to be necessary, the navy would ask congress for authority to build bigger cruisers than the present 10-ton type.

Employer Group Is Being Probed

Senate Committee Is Investigating Open Shop Activities

Los Angeles—(AP)—Inquiry into open shop activities of employer groups in Los Angeles—a historic open shop stronghold—was resumed today in the United States senate civil liberties committee hearing.

Testimony and evidence introduced late yesterday disclosed that an "open shop labor temple" operated by the Los Angeles Merchants and Manufacturers' association was credited in association literature with having "placed thousands of open shop workers," many of whom "formerly carried union cards."

Manager Len O. Gunn of the "temple testified a printed notice saying it maintained "open shop American principles" had been displayed at the hall until subpenaed for this hearing.

Denying that non-union men were given any preference in job-placing, Gunn said notations on some of the registration cards referring to the applicants' union records did not "mean a thing." Many applicants were quoted as saying they would "not take a strike job."

Senator LaFollette, committee chairman, then introduced a report from committee investigators, based on a check of 798 registration cards showing work assignments. The report said:

"A strike-breaker was over twice as likely to get a job, compared to non-strike-breakers."

General Manager Fred R. Fysh of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association testified it supplied 5,081 maritime workers during the 1934 west coast waterfront strike.

Roosevelt Asserts He Hasn't Discussed Third Term in Ohio Primary

Washington—(AP)—Ohioans heard some strong third term talk last Monday, but President Roosevelt said today he had not discussed with Charles O. West the question of putting the Roosevelt name on the ballot in the forthcoming Ohio primary election.

The chief executive replied in the negative to a question whether he had given West, former member of congress from Ohio and once undersecretary of interior, information on not putting his name in as a candidate. He indicated that the subject had not been discussed when West conferred with him yesterday.

In a Jackson day dinner speech Monday in Cleveland, Robert H. Jackson, who has been nominated for the attorney generalship, gave the third-term idea a boost.

He said he did not know what answer the president would give to the third-term question "but I do know what the rank and file of Democrats and citizens generally hope it will be."

West reported after his White House visit that he had talked politics with the president. He said, too, that reaction to Jackson day speech-making in the state was good. Asked whether it appeared favorable to a third term, West said it might be judged so from the way the oratory was received.

Swiss Put New Tax On Profits From War

Berne—(AP)—The Swiss federal council today announced a new tax on war profits.

A 30 per cent surtax will be collected on that part of a profit which is 10 per cent above war-profits. This will rise to 40 per cent for any part 25 per cent above the pre-war level.

Despite federal control of prices of imports and exports, many Swiss metal, motor and other industries are working overtime on war orders and have doubled or trebled their capital.

Income from the new tax is earmarked to cover part of the cost of Swiss mobilization.

Open Conference on Motor Truck Dispute

Chicago—(AP)—State officials from Michigan and Wisconsin met in executive session at the Congress hotel today in an attempt, they said, to reach a reciprocity agreement on motor vehicle licensing.

Those attending the conference reported it was progressing satisfactorily. No further comment, they said, would be made now.

Trade Pacts Have Not Hurt Farmer, Wallace Asserts

Denies Agricultural Industries 'Singled Out For Sacrifice'

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Wallace, declaring he considered the reciprocal trade agreements program "distinctly worthwhile," said today he knew of no single case where reductions in duties on farm imports had "seriously inconvenienced an American agricultural industry."

"There has been a good deal of loose talk about agricultural industries being singled out for sacrifice in the trade agreement bargaining process," Wallace said in a statement prepared for the house ways and means committee. "There is absolutely no foundation for such statements."

The head of the agriculture department appeared to take the stand after Secretary of State Hull had told the committee that if the reciprocal trade program were abandoned this nation "must go back to log-rolling, lobbying, unholy alliances" of the high protective tariff system.

"It is the only alternative," the white-haired secretary of state said. He, too, went on to say that the American farmer would have been much worse off without the program. This assertion, however, drew a Republican retort that "that's just a theory."

"Fair Price" Aim

The Republican critic, Representative Gearhart of California, interrupted Hull to contend that the program had failed flatly to bring farm income back to its one-time $12,000,000,000 level.

Parrying Gearhart's contentions, Hull declared "we are watching every chance to get every dollar of our surpluses into trade channels at a fair price."

The Californian then countered that "the fact remains that farm income once was $12,000,000,000 and now is only $5,000,000,000."

Firemen Rescue Woman and Baby

Aid Escape Through Second-Story Window as Fire Blocks Exit

Kaukauna—Firemen carried Mrs. Clarence Vogt and her 15-months-old son to safety when fire broke out in the Tasty bakery, 130 W. Third street, about 3:30 this morning and blocked the regular exit. Vogt is operator of the bakery and the Vogt family resides on the second floor. The woman and child were carried from a front window on the second floor.

The fire, which started in the bakery kitchen, caused damage of about $2,000. A doughnut kettle caught fire, Vogt said, and the flames spread upward.

After two hours work, and the calling out of a second fire truck, firemen brought the blaze under control. Dense smoke hampered the firemen.

Refuses Extradition of Man Who 'Made Good'

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—Governor John W. Bricker refused today to authorize the extradition to Oklahoma of Carlton B. Chilton, 44-year-old Clevelander who "made good" after escaping from an Oklahoma reformatory in 1913.

Sonja Henie Denies Charges by Promoter In Suit for $92,000

New York—(AP)—Dennis R. Scanlon avers—and Sonja Henie denies—that he had a contract to obtain judges "not unfavorable" to her in the 1936 Olympics.

Scanlon, an agent and promoter suing for $92,000, says he and a theatrical bureau contracted to share in 20 per cent of what she earned in the movies.

He says he convinced judges at Garmisch-Partenkirchen that she was not a professional just because her name had been used in advertising in Paris; and that he had an agreement with her to use his "best efforts to cause to be named as judges . . . persons known to be not unfavorable" to her.

Miss Henie, appearing in an ice show in Clevaland, said the charges were "ridiculous and that she would come here next week to fight them.

Airliner Makes Forced Landing On Frozen River

4 of 5 Passengers and 2 Pilots Suffer Minor Injuries; Ship Damaged

Moline, Ill.—(AP)—Ten-inch ice and some dexterous piloting saved five passengers and a crew of three from possible death early today when a United Air Lines plane made a forced landing on a narrow stretch of the Rock river.

The plane, with one of its two motors disabled, slid across the ice and smashed into a concrete retaining wall on the river bank. Four passengers and the two pilots suffered only minor injuries.

The 14-passenger sleeper, enroute from New York to San Francisco, developed motor trouble about midnight while near Iowa City, Iowa.

Unwilling to risk a landing on the small Iowa City airport, Chief Pilot Charles E. Wheeler of Oak Park, Ill., turned his craft about and backtracked to Moline, 60 miles away.

The plane overshot the Moline field, just cleared a hill on the north end, and then began to settle. The lone functioning motor pulled the plane over the tops of trees and a concrete wall on the river bank before the craft mushed to the ice, with less than a 300-yard run available.

"Skillful" Landing

Officials of the airline said they had been unable to question Wheeler as to why he had overshot the airport, but described his handling of his ship as "extremely skillful" after he found himself in trouble. The airport was lighted and the flying weather favorable. They said their investigation thus far had led to the conclusion that:

Wheeler found his altitude too high on his approach to the airport for his landing. He brought his ship about for an approach at a lower level but the plane, with one motor disabled, was losing speed rapidly. Rather than waste any momentum in maneuvering for a proper landing on the port, Wheeler decided immediately to alight on the ice-coated river.

He made a perfect three-point landing on the ice. The damage caused when the plane slid into the retaining wall could have been avoided if he had been able to straighten out his course more.

'Oldest Woman on Earth' Dies At 127 in Texas; Wisconsin Man Observes 109th Birthday

Dallas, Texas—(AP)—Fishtrap road is wrapped in gloom: the "oldest old woman on earth" is dead.

Granny Geldia Solomon, who claimed to have lived 127 years, died yesterday, all of a sudden like. Until a few days ago she was spry as a young one.

Apparently she knew her time had come because she sighed and murmured:

"Lord, come get me. I been a-waitin'."

And then she died.

Paterson, N. J.—(AP)—Mrs. Doris Mattis, who served dinner to the Austrian emperor 93 years ago in Vienna, died today at 110.

Mrs. Mattis always had kept a gold coin which she said was given her by the Emperor Ferdinand and Crown Prince Franz Josef when she was a waitress in 1847.

She was born in Austria, June 13, 1829, and came to this country in 1879. Her mother died at 115, her father at 108.

Stanley, Wis.—(AP)—Spry for his age, Julius Paul celebrated today the 109th anniversary of his birth.

With him were his wife, Katherine, who is approaching the century mark, and nearly 250 of his descendants, gathered at his N Franklin street home to wish him well.

Julius, as he is known to most of his many friends, still is active and in unusually good health. He reads without glasses, walks downtown occasionally to chat with the townspeople, enjoys his pipe, and, now and then, a glass of beer.

He says he never has hunted or fished, that gardening is his only hobby.

He credits his long life to the activity and routine of regular living.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul live alone and do the work around the house. They are looking forward to celebration of their seventy-sixth wedding anniversary next April.

Paul was born at Tuchal, Germany, Jan. 12, 1831. He and Katherine Clayman were married in Prussia, then came to America.

Hope Ebbs for Lives Of Rest of 91 Trapped Men

CONTINUE HUNT

21 Additional Bodies are Found Today by Rescue Crews

Bartley, W. Va.—(AP)—The finding of 21 additional bodies in the explosion-wrecked Bartley No. 1 mine early today increased fear that all 91 men trapped there had perished.

Rescue crews finally broke through a section near the blasted area and found the badly-mangled bodies, bringing the known dead to 25.

After a hurried search, rescuers abandoned hope for approximately a dozen others trapped there and continued digging toward a nearby section on the possibility of finding some 30 men there alive. About 30 working where the explosion centered were virtually given up for dead.

"I am afraid that finding of the bodies means the other men in the mine also will be found dead," said G. J. Stollings, general manager of Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corporation which operates the workings.

47 Make Escape

It took approximately 38 hours to tunnel through tons of slate, rock and coal to where the men were caught 600 feet underground by a blast mine inspectors said might have resulted when the miners cut into some abandoned gas-filled entry. Forty-seven diggers in the eastern section of the mine escaped.

Four bodies were recovered before rescuers reached the explosion scene. Two of these victims were said by officials to apparently have violated rules and started walking out of the mine after finishing work instead of waiting to be brought out. The explosion occurred less than an hour before the day shift was scheduled to go off duty.

Hope of finding some of the men alive brightened early today when weary workers finally dug into a right entry, finding dinner buckets and machines where an estimated 30 men had been working. Belief was expressed that the men had made their way to another section and successfully barricaded themselves against gas but these hopes were dashed with the finding of the bodies in a passageway leading off from the entry.

The bodies were approximately 8,000 feet from the shaft and some 2,400 feet away from another group of workers that might be alive.

Return on Liquor Tax Is Highest in History

Madison — (AP) — State Treasurer John M. Smith announced today the $2,172,150.26 of liquor taxes apportioned to cities, towns and villages for the last half of 1939 was the highest semi-annual return on record.

The disbursement, he said, amounted to 73.9 cents per capita, an increase of 24.3 cents over the sum allotted for each of the 2,936,513 residents of the state for the first half of the year.

Smith attributed the increase to operating economies and more rigid law enforcement on the part of the beverage tax division. He said collection expense for 1939 was 3.23 per cent, as compared with 4.40 per cent in 1938 and 6.43 per cent in 1937.

Revenue from the state tax of $1 a gallon on intoxicating liquor, less the cost of collection, is returned to the localities every six months to reduce property taxes. Distribution is based on population.

3 Kidnapers Executed In Sing Sing Prison

Ossining, N. Y.—(AP)—Two members of a kidnap gang died silently in Sing Sing's electric chair last night for the kidnap-slaying of a man whose body never was found.

They were Demetrius Gula, 31, and Joseph Sacoda, 28, convicted of kidnaping Arthur Fried, young business man of White Plains, in December, 1937, and burning his shot-riddled body in the furnace of an obscure east side clubhouse in New York.

They were the first to die under the state's 1933 "Lindbergh law" which calls for the extreme penalty if a kidnaped person is not returned safely before trial of the abductors.

There were two other members of the ring—John Virga, 35, a paroled robber, and William Jacknis, 27, a former playground inspector.

Pittsburgh Man Plunges 60 Feet but Is Unhurt

Pittsburgh—(AP)—Henry Grabowski made quite a dent when he fell 60 feet from a fifth-story window and landed on the metal top of an automobile but that's about the extent of the damage.

X-rays failed to find a single broken bone in the body of the 20-year-old window cleaner but he was kept at a hospital overnight just to play safe.

Russian Forces Attempt to Cut Path Southward

Bring Up Artillery on Arctic Fronts; Fighting in Progress

London —(AP)— A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Helsinki reported that Russian warplanes raided the Finnish capital this afternoon.

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS

With the Finnish Arctic Army—(AP)—The Russian army, put to rout on the central Finnish front, is making a gigantic effort to cut a path southward from the Salla and Petsamo fronts in the Arctic.

The Soviets started a twin attack Wednesday after bringing up of artillery. The fighting continued today.

An undisclosed village in the Salla sector is the only northern position which the Soviets have been able to fortify strongly, however. A Finnish victory there would re-establish the frontier clear of any enemy forces southward to below Suomussalmi in the "waistline."

Although the Russians have large forces in the Petsamo district, the Finns relied upon the intensely cold weather, with temperatures 25 degrees below zero, to prevent a decisive encounter before spring.

Guerilla warfare has prevailed in the Petsamo area thus far, with sniping engagements between isolated units.

Successful Strategy

An 800-mile tour southward from the Arctic circle across Finland at the coast "bottleneck" to below Suomussalmi and back to the Arctic general headquarters provided ample indication that the strategy of the Finnish woodsman had proved successful.

One can drive for two hours and see no sign of an army until halted by a sentry who slips silently out of the woods on skis.

The headquarters of the colonel of the Suomussalmi front was a plasterboard wigwam. While only a few yards off the main highway, it was hidden completely by a forest.

I crawled on my knees to enter before the colonel sitting on a red blanket thrown over the straw-covered ground. Beside him were a radio and field telephones.

Around a 10-foot tree serving as a center-pole hung the officer's heavy coat. Before a stove an attendant crouched on his knees ladling thick pea soup into metal bowls.

Hunt Fleeing Reds

In the darkness outside, I could hear an occasional rifle shot or burst of hand grenades as patrols scouted the woods for remnants of the 44th Soviet division, reported virtually wiped out last week.

A short drive away was a four and one-half mile stretch once covered by the Russians, through which the Finns searched for rifles and ammunition.

One well-placed shell had shattered the caterpillar rigging of a Russian tank, halting the entire column. This started the Finns to their second victory over a red army division, although the battle raged for three days.

The Finns reported the 163rd division of the army was virtually annihilated in an engagement Dec. 29 and 30 near Suomussalmi.

U. S. Investigates Boston Dog Track

Shows It Paid Huge Dividends While Protesting High Taxes

Boston — (AP)—The Dighton dog track, according to records in possession of federal investigators today, made profits of $227,520 for its stockholders, who purchased the original 4,740 shares at par value of $1 a share.

Federal officials said records indicated half of the original shares were owned by a group headed by Edward J. O'Hare, slain in gangster fashion recently in Chicago.

Financial affairs of the track, which has been in operation for four years, are under investigation by a federal grand jury for alleged income tax violations.

One of the charges was that income accruing from the track to at least one individual had been understated by approximately $113,000 in 1935 and 1936.

The records showed the track paid dividends of 1,500 per cent in 1936; 1,800 per cent in 1937; nothing in 1938, and 1,500 per cent in 1939, federal officials said.

This dividend record, they added, meant that on each $1 invested, the return had been $48.

Last year the state legislature exempted the track from the highest taxation bracket on the plea that it could not continue to operate if it were forced to pay large additional amounts to the state.

While this plea was being made, federal attorney asserted, dividends of 1,500 per cent apparently were being paid to stockholders.

$30,000 Is Sought In Two Damage Suits

Jefferson, Wis.—(AP)— Two damage suits, demanding $30,000 for injuries received in an automobile accident which was fatal to Mrs. Edna Wright of Madison and Mrs. Wenzel Thompson, Minneapolis, have been filed in Jefferson county circuit court

One suit, asking $10,000, was filed by Miss Alma M. Runge, Madison teacher and driver of the car in which the two women were killed near Ixonia last July. The defendants are David Savick of Milwaukee, driver of the other car, the National Household Distributors company by which he was employed, and the Continental Casualty company.

Eager to Start River Diversion

Waupaca County Sportsmen Want to Raise Level of White Lake

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The state conservation commission and the Waupaca county board have been informed by the Wisconsin public service commission that the latter must under the statutes hold a public hearing before the projected White Lake improvement project can be begun.

Waupaca county conservation organizations have been active in promoting the building of a dam and ditches to divert water from the Little Wolf River to the lake in order to raise the water level and to prevent wholesale killing of fish by freezing in winter.

Local interests have applied for a hearing to the commission, but a date has not yet been set.

The project was proposed to the conservation commission recently by Edward Browne of Waupaca, a member, who suggested that the project was worthy enough to warrant the expenditure of state funds.

Browne said that the lake, in the town of Royalton near Weyauwega, is the center of a local resort area and that the lake is famed in central Wisconsin for its fishing.

It is proposed that a dam be built across the Little Wolf River and that a ditch be dug to carry water into White Lake and another to carry water back into the river, the purpose being to create a current through the lake in winter to prevent the death of fish. Local residents have testified that huge quantities of fish have been destroyed in past seasons.

Local sporting groups have also suggested that the pond created by the proposed dam could be utilized as a bass rearing pond.

It has also been revealed by the public service commission that a local group in Shawano county has purchased the Tilleda Mill dam in Shawano county which will maintain the dam and millpond for recreational purposes. Because the dam has been sold by Fred A. Grosskopf, Inc., the company has withdrawn its application for permission to remove the dam and release waters held in the mill-pond.

Mussolini Steps Into Limelight as He Works To Perfect Balkan Bloc

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Signor Mussolini's sudden spurt of progress with his scheme for forming Hungary and the Balkans into a defensive bloc against Russia —and in effect against Germany— has swung the attention of Europe to this highly strategic peninsula and to the Fascist chieftain, who has been pursuing an enigmatic neutrality since the outbreak of war.

Il Duce'e reported success in making a defensive alliance with Hungary, thereby throwing a barrier across an important highway to the peninsula, indicates he finally is getting ahead with a program which long has engaged his efforts. Up to this juncture the Balkans have regarded the Fascist chieftain with considerable suspicion, fearing ulterior motives, but they now seem to be veering round in his direction.

Should Mussolini attain his goal it would provide a major sensation. It would mean that the united Balkans, which saw the whelping of the World war, might control sufficient resources to be able to swing the balance in this new conflict.

Germany has been banking mightily on continued domination of the resources of the Balkans to help defeat the naval blockade and win the war. The formation of a bloc would deprive the nation of domination, and most likely accelerate the flow of supplies which have been going forward recently to the Anglo-French allies instead of Germany.

Thus Mussolini's present operations, whether they are calculated to or not, do in fact work against the interest of his axis partner and to the advantage of the allies. However, while this situation is momentous it isn't surprising, for many observers long have felt that il duce was cooling rapidly toward the Berlin-Rome axis.

The Balkans' position presents a fascinating problem at this critical moment. The hardy folk of this great area, not a little of which is primitive in its outlook, live in a world apart. Racial and national feelings burn fiercely. The people are conservative and make friendships slowly.

I toured that whole area a year ago—talking with officials, partaking of the traditional water and honey in peasant's cottages, mingling with the motley crowds of the market places, even going far back into the wilds of the Balkan mountains—and I came away convinced that it would take a lifetime for one to become really acquainted with the Balkans.

Child Stops Mayor From Using Street

Greenville, S. C.—(AP)—As Mayor C. Fred McCullough drove into a side street, a little girl in a snow suit held up a hand:

"You can't go this way—we have it blocked off for sledding."

Launch Move to Organize County Paralysis Unit

Organization Will be Formed to Handle Drive Collections

A move to organize an Outagamie county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has been launched by William F. Hegner, county chairman for the drive this year, and others interested.

Hegner said the new organization will handle and authorize distribution of money collected each year through the president's birthday parties and the "march of dimes" held in conjunction with the parties to raise money for the fight against the spread of infantile paralysis.

Of the money collected since the parties started in 1935, the record shows $295.68 remaining is a fund, which will be taken over by the local chapter. Fifty per cent of the money collected is turned over to the national chapter while in the first years of the drive the entire amount collected went to the national unit. Some of the money remaining in Appleton was spent for supplies and equipment for the orthopedic school. The rest has not been distributed.

Davis Heads Drive

The drive in Appleton this year is headed by H. L. Davis, Jr., and the birthday ball will be sponsored by the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Committee chairman for the Appleton drive are Joseph Kerrigan, special contributions; Sylvester Esler, dance chairman, Harold Stout, treasurer; Wilmer Krueger, march of dimes; Jack Thurber, radio; E. L. Biselx, publicity; Gertrude Brummond, women; Arthur Benson, displays; and William C. Pickett, sports.

County chapters cooperating in the drive this year will be Seymour, Kimberly, Kaukauna, Appleton, Freedom, Shiocton, Black Creek, Little Chute, Dale and Medina.

Last year the drive netted $426.30, expenses were $19.39 and $203.46 was sent to the national chapter.

Baraboo Attorney Is Critically Injured

Watertown —(AP)— Robert Holmes, Baraboo attorney, was reported in a critical condition today following an automobile collision in which Harold Wilkie, Madison attorney and former president of the University of Wisconsin board of regents, also was injured.

Holmes and Wilkie were enroute to Milwaukee yesterday when their car and one driven by Harry Zimpher, a farmer, who lives near Eagle, collided on a hill on Highway 30 near Johnson Creek.

All three were taken to a hospital here. Holmes was believed to have suffered internal injuries. Wilkie sustained a broken ankle, cuts and bruises. Zimpher's injuries also were extensive.

Fugitive Youths are Picked Up at Phoenix

Phoenix, Ariz.,—(AP)—Three youths who escaped Dec. 31 from the state industrial school for boys at Waukesha, Wis., and started for California in a car admittedly stolen at Fond du Lac, Wis., were in custody here today, Sheriff Lon Jordan said.

The three—Eldon Mullen of Fond du Lac, Alex Kimbell and Lionel Hardy, all 18—were arrested yesterday at Gila Bend, Ariz.

Classes at Vocational School Attract Nearly 3,000 Adults

BY LILLIAN MACKESY

While all the children are trekking back to school after the mid-year vacation nearly 3,000 grown-ups are brushing the snow off their feet this week as they go in the doors of the Appleton Vocational school to start a new term of study in 105 different classes.

The vocational school is one of the busiest places in the city at night. Cars are parked solidly for blocks in the district near the school and as one approaches the building, the intense stream of blue light that flickers from the welding classrooms gives the first indication of night school. Muffled sounds from the machine shops can be heard in a sort of undertone while going up the walk, and through the windows of the downstairs room facing the walk can be seen heads of adult students industriously bent over drawing boards.

Inside the building the first floor classes take on a more academic quietness, while upstairs the hum of busy sewing machines and scrunch of scissors on cloth intermingle with cheerful sounds of kitchen work, the tinkle of silver and the noises of dishes being placed or washed. The tantalizing odors of cooking foods gives the crowning touch to the homemaking department and many a delayed appetite to students on the lower floor when they emerge from their classrooms.

105 Classes

From Monday through Friday men and women who have finished their day's work, young people, middle-aged folk, housewives and teachers gather at the school to go to various classes for an evening of study. The 105 classes are divided under six departments with the homemaking division heading the list in popularity with 36 classes, although the trade extension division offers the greatest variety with 22 different subjects in its total of 26 classes.

Among the unusual work being done in the homemaking division are six neighborhood sewing classes held throughout the week in the home of a dressmaker taecher, a course in costume design and textiles, a class in home nursing and one in interior decorating. Knitting is so popular that it takes six classes to accommodate the evening needle clickers, while the 11 sewing classes held in the school include those for beginners, advanced seamstresses and special work such as children's clothing and pattern cutting. The 10 classes in foods that are responsible for the delicious odors that pervade the school halls about 8:30 every evening are for beginners and more dexterous cooks and students interested in party foods, table service and supper clubs that plan, cook and eat their own meals.

The courses in the general industrial and trade departments read like a curriculum of a college engineering school. While one group studies the fine points of blue print reading or architectural drawing, another is busily engaged with the stains and varnishes that go with cabinet making, the hammer and saws of woodworking and the machine shops or the gadgets and noises that characterize the electric motor, foundry, and welding classes. Whether it be masonry, auto mechanics, air conditioning, refrigeration or sheet metal, the vocational school has a class for it.

Courses In Selling

In the distributive division that deals with the field of selling are six classes in salesmanship, three in office management, one of show card writing, one in pharmacy and one in life insurance.

Several classes in typewriting, shorthand, bookkeeping together with one class in business English and C. P. A. accounting comprise the commercial group of studies.

While others are keeping their hands occupied in the printing shop, kitchen or the shops, students in the general improvement division classes are engaged in parsing verbs, studying how to do lip reading or learning the whys and wherefores of psychology. French, Spanish and English classes belong to this group as well as a class in cooperative economics and citizenship.

In characterizing the vocational school mathematics courses as a cafeteria in figures ranging from good old fashioned arithmetic to advanced calculus, Herb Heilig, director of the school, really expresses his entire adult study program. Each of the 3,000 or so grown-ups who attend the school pick out just what they want to study and then go and get it.

Denies Game Body Minutes Revised

Chairman Answers Charge of Appleton Commissioner

Madison —(AP)— Chairman James J. Corcoran of the conservation commission denied yesterday that minutes of commission meetings had been revised to suit him and Director H. W. MacKenzie.

Commissioner Mark Catlin, Sr., of Appleton, declared Wednesday he had discovered errors which were not corrected.

"It has been the practice of the commission for many years to take a shorthand account of all discussions," Corcoran said. "This full and complete record is available at all times to any commissioner or any one else wishing to see it.

"Minutes of our meetings, of course, are not so complete. They are handled in the same way as minutes of any other commission or of any corporation, detailing only the actions actually taken by the body."

Declaring no minutes ever were "garbled," Corcoran added:

"Of course, we can't very well incorporate speeches in an abbreviated record."

Horses for French Army Are Loaded Onto Ships

Philadelphia—(AP)— Future mounts for French soldiers, 1,100 horses from the western plains, were loaded on two French freighters today for the second leg of their journey to Europe's western front.

Husky stevedores, unaccustomed to handling horses, gingerly led the spirited young animals up the gangplank of the freighter Mont Everest. The ship will carry 450 of the animals, while the remaining 650 will go aboard the freighter St. Malao.

Purchase of the horses was arranged by the French military commission at St. Louis. The animals arrived here three days ago.

Farm Federation Holding Fate of Certificate Plan

Wallace, Bureau Officials And Roosevelt Hold Conference

Washington —(AP)— On the support or lack of support of the American Farm Bureau Federation largely depends the fate of Secretary Wallace's farm certificate plan.

The secretary talked the matter over with farm bureau officials a few days ago at Chicago. Then they came to Washington for a talk with President Roosevelt. But their final position is yet to be announced.

Under the plan, producers of specified crops would receive certificates from the government which processors and other crop purchasers would have to buy. The certificates would be valued at the difference between the parity price, or pre-1914 purchasing level, of such crops, and the lower market value. The manufacturer or processor, it is expected, would pass the cost of the certificate on to the consumer as a sort of processing tax.

If the farm bureau officials oppose the plan, most agricultural leaders agree that it is dead so far as this session of congress is concerned. Of the other two major farm organizations, the Farmers Union favors the plan and the National Grange has not announced its position. This week's decision by the Farm Bureau Federation is the one that the agriculture department awaits.

A decision by the federation against the certificate plan would be the signal for a campaign to open in congress for a continuance of appropriations for parity payments to be added to the expenses of the new agriculture bill. Such an appropriation would be sought in the same way as was that of last year —a flat appropriation from the treasury without any new tax being laid to raise the money for it.

Wind Shift Helps to Free Ice-Locked Ship

Cheboygan, Mich.—(AP)—The steam barge M. H. Stuart, trapped in the ice in the Straits of Mackinac more than 48 hours, took advantage of a favorable wind shift late yesterday and bucked its way into this harbor.

The barge, a 150-footer which carries lumber, did not appear to have suffered more than minor damage.

The crew of 10 was unharmed.

Certificate of Title Needed to Get Car License

New Plates Must be Secured From State Motor Vehicle Division

Charles Steidl, captain of the county traffic squad, today advised automobile owners that to obtain a 1940 license, it is necessary only to send the motor vehicle department at Madison the certificate of title accompanied by the correct license fee, which is indicated on the title. Motorists were reminded that if they have moved to send along the correct address when making the license application.

To obtain a 1940 license and at the same time transfer ownership of a second-hand vehicle, the certificate of title must be accompanied with the license fee plus a dollar transfer fee. A duplicate certificate of title should be obtained if the original has been lost or destroyed. Application for a duplicate title must be properly filled out and notorized.

Operation of a car is illegal if the transfer of title is not completed, Steidl said. The law provides that transfer of ownership is not valid nor the use of license plates valid until the certificate of title, properly signed by the seller and new owner, has been filed with the motor vehicle department. Failure to complete transfer of ownership within five days makes the new owner liable for a fine of not to exceed $500 or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Remittances for license and transfer fees should be made by money order, bank draft or check payable to the motor vehicle department, Madison.

Murray Asserts Trade Treaties Hurt Farmers

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca, says that no one has yet been able to show any benefit from reciprocal trade treaties for the American farmer. The treaties "operate for the benefit of the big monopolies but at the expense of the farmer and laborer," he declares.

"If American labor had produced and processed the millions of dollars worth of agricultural products imported each year, American labor and the American farmer would have been correspondingly benefited. The percentage of farm mortgages would have been lessened and the WPA rolls reduced," he emphasizes.

The trade treaties have been especially detrimental to dairy farmers, Murray asserts.

Board Grants Permit To Move Metal Garage

A permit to move a sheet metal garage building from 916 W. Spencer street to 1202 N. Lawe street was granted by the board of building inspection yesterday to C. A. Kaufman. The board denied Kaufman's application to retain a wooden building on the same property and ordered him to raze the structure within 30 days. Cost of moving the garage is estimated at $100.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Dies Committee

The Dies committee was created by the House of Representatives on May 26, 1938, to investigate subversive and un-American propaganda, and "all other questions in relation thereto that would aid Congress in any necessary remedial legislation." After working for a year and a half the committee have just reported to Congress that they do not "think the investigation has uroceeded far enough to justify us in recommending legislation to Congress. We need an can secure much more information, not only from sections of the country that we have investigated but also from the larger areas that we have not even touched, before recommending legislation to Congress. Even after we are supplied with full and complete information and facts, several months of consideration must be devoted to the question of legislation. This will require expert assistance and thorough research."

So the committee ask for another two years of life and an appropriation of at least $150,000.

It is evident, however, that the committee do not put much faith in the legislation that they may eventually recommend. On page 13 of their report they state that "Congress does not have the power to deny to citizens the right to believe in, teach, or advocate, Communism, Fascism and Nazism." Thus the committee are precluded from recommending legislation which would prohibit citizens. Mr. Earl Browder and Mr. Fritz Kuhn for example, from conducting un-American and subversive propaganda.

What sort of legislation, then, can the committee eventually recommend? The committee hold that, in principle, they can recommend legislation to deport aliens who conduct such propaganda; they hold that Congress could, in principle, outlaw any organization found to be under the control or the dictation of a foreign government, as for example the Communist party and the Bund; or that Congress could require such organizations to make a public disclosure of their membership and their funds. But the committee are not ready to suggest legislation of this sort.

Difficult to Make Any Legislation Stick

This reluctance to recommend legislation is the crux of the matter. The reluctance arises, we may suppose, from a realization on the part of the committee that legislation of this character would be extremely difficult to enforce. But more than that, the kind of legislation which Congress has power to enact could not get at the real problem which their investigation has disclosed. For the essential thing about these subversive movements is that their directing chiefs and the true believers feel bound by no rule of law or morals; there is no form of subterfuge, concealment, or perjury which they do not feel fanatically entitled to employ.

The naive may shut their eyes to this. But it is the quintiressence of the whole problem. For even supposing that within the framework of the Constitution it were possible to frame and enact a law against these revolutionary conspiracies, the prosecuting officers, the juries and the judges would not convict without legal evidence that would be extremely difficult to obtain. The case of Al Capone, convicted as I remember not for his real offenses against society but for income tax evasion, or the case of Fritz Kuhn convicted for a petty offense against his own followers and dupes, shows how difficult it is to legislate, detect, prosecute and convict members of the organized underworld. By their absolute and total lawlessness they elude, much more readily than other men, the clutches of the law.

Committee Operates as Vigilantes of Politics

This is the reason, I take it, why the committee are so half-hearted about legislation, and why they wish to continue "investigating" rather than to begin legislating. Although they do not say so plainly in their official report, it is, I think, evident that the remedy in which they put their faith is what they call (on page 13) "the right to focus the spotlight of publicity" upon revolutionary activity. In other words, the remedy is not in what the Dies committee will eventually recommend to Congress but in what the Dies committee are now exposing in the newspapers.

The Dies committee are not really a legislative committee. They are a kind of committee of public safety set up by Congress to suppress activities which though detested by the great majority of the people, are in themselves either not unlawful, or, even if they were outlawed, could not be dealt with by the ordinary procedure of the law. The Dies committee are official vigilantes operating in an area, that of the political underworld, where there is as yet no effective law and there is, therefore, no order. The commtiteemen, like their vigilante predecessors on the American frontier, are, therefore, themselves often lawless in spirit and disorderly in their methods.

Dies Should Continue Work But Reform It

This accounts for the somewhat shame-faced approval which thoughtful men have given to the work of the committee. The public is confronted with the ancient moral question of whether the end justifies the means. Thus, only the very innocent and self-deluding have any doubt that the Dies committee have been attacking a formidable evil in modern society. The menace is real. It is not imaginary. And it must be met. Yet there is no doubt also that the procedure of the Dies committee is itself a violation of American morality; it is a pillory in which reputations are ruined, often without proof and always without the legal safeguards that protect the ordinary criminal; it is a tribunal before which men are arraigned and charged with acts that are, as a matter of fact, lawful.

Therefore, the end, which is to protect the American system, is attained by means which, if used for some other end, would be deplored by every one—by every one, except, of course, the revolutionists whom Mr. Dies is stalking.

It is plain that the Dies committee cannot be abolished and must be continued since it offers a center of resistance to evils which could not otherwise be brought to light and checked. It is equally plain that the committee needs to be reformed, so that its methods will in spirit, at least, be lawful, and, therefore, capable of commanding the respect of law-abiding citizens.

I do not know how this can be done except by subjecting the procedure of the committee to public criticism, and by adding to the membership one or two learned and respected lawyers who will make it their business to reform the procedure, and by giving the committee enough money to hire competent investigators so that they may cease to rely upon dubious informers and the crackpots who always gather about an inquiry of this sort.

One Injured as Four Accidents Occur in County

Slippery Streets, Highways are Blamed for Traffic Mishaps

One person was injured slightly as four traffic accidents were reported in Outagamie county yesterday and this morning. Slippery streets and highways were blamed.

Elmer Coon, 19, route 2, Appleton, was bruised about the face when the car he was driving hit the rear of a trailer being hauled by Orville Schneider, 32, route 2, Neenah, on Highway 10 just west of the city limits. The trailer became detached from Schneider's machine and careened across the highway, spilling most of a load of grain, according to Ronald Decker, county traffic officer.

Machines driven by Herbert Klein, Hortonville, and Ray Joslin, Rhinelander, were damaged in a collision on Highway 76 three miles west of Appleton at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. Joslin was driving a truck southeast when it skidded into the rear of the Klein car, Decker reported.

The railroad crossing wigwag signal on W. College avenue was damaged about 1:15 this morning when a car being driven west by Roslyn Smith, 35, 916 W. Spring street, struck it after skidding on the icy street, according to a report given police.

A car driven by Raymond Le Beau, 20, 192½ Main street, Menasha, went out of control as it skidded on Wisconsin avenue near Drew street and struck a tree at 11:55 last night, according to a police report.

Students Record Their Own Voices In Corrective Work

Keeping in time with the progress in speech work, Appleton High school has purchased a voice recording machine. Funds were taken from proceeds earned by the dramatic department.

According to Miss Ruth McKennan, head of the speech department, students are urged to make voice recordings when they begin speech work in the fall. At that time their voices are analyzed, and each student has the opportunity to hear the defects in his own voice and work throughout the year on exercises which will help to correct these defects. Another recording will be made in spring to measure the progress the individual has made. Miss McKennan is at present training students to assist her in this work.

In addition to hearing their voices played back from a record, students have the opportunity to hear themselves through a microphone which is part of the public address system built in the recording machine. In this way each student has a second opportunity to make an objective analysis of his own voice.

Sun Shines, but Mercury Is Well Below Freezing

24 Degrees This Afternoon; Fair, Colder Tonight, Forecast

Snow was melting on roofs and streets today, but the bright sun and blue skies deceived many into thinking the mercury was above freezing. It was far from that, however, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registering 24 degrees at 1:30 this afternoon.

Fair and colder tonight, cloudy and warmer tomorrow is the forecast for Appleton and vicinity issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau. For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 33 and the lowest, 18, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company charts.

The mercury took a dive over much of the middle west today, some points chilled by weather 30 degrees colder than yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

Zero temperatures penetrated into local areas as far south as northwestern Missouri, with Bemidji, Minn., the coldest point in the nation, 13 below.

Contrasting Mildness

In contrast, mild temperatures were general in the eastern states and westward along the gulf coast to Texas. Moderate conditions prevailed over the central and southern parts of states west of the rockies.

Rain or snow has fallen from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast and over most of the territory west of the Rockies. At 6:30 a. m. practically all central and northern portions of the country from the Rockies east to the Atlantic coast were covered with snow.

More snow in the next 36 hours was forecast for Nebraska, most of South Dakota, southern Minnesota and Iowa. Illinois, Indiana and most of Michigan were expected to receive some by tomorrow night or Sunday.

Other cold spots at 6:30 a. m. included Bismarck, N. D., 5 below; St. Joseph, Mo., 3 below; Fargo, N. D., Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., and Sheridan, Wyo., 2 below; Huron, S. D., Miles City, Mont., and Omaha, Neb., zero.

Aldermen to Talk Over Salaries at Informal Parley

Wages for 2-Year Terms Must be Set at Feb. 7 Meeting

An informal meeting of the Appleton city council was called for 7:30 tonight in city hall by Alderman VanderHeyden, president of the council, to discuss salaries.

Wages for elective city officers must be set at the first meeting in February and cannot be changed during the two year terms starting May 1 after the April elections.

The meeting tonight will be held to talk over the salary situation for all city employes and if possible, to frame definite recommendations to be submitted at the Feb. 7 meeting.

The aldermen's wage dispute, the result of the referendum cutting councilmen from $500 to $250 per year, still is unsettled. A municipal court ruling invalidated the referendum and placed aldermen's pay at $500 per year.

However, city officers appealed the case to the state supreme court in behalf of the people and no decision has been made by the court as yet. A decision is expected in February or March.

This is one of a number of brief articles telling how certain Appleton streets received their names. Much of the information in these articles comes from a survey made by Miss Anna L. Tenney, 724 E. Alton street.

Green Bay street—From E. John street northeast to E. North street, 10 blocks east of N. Oneida street.

Old Post Office Could Not be Sold If City Bought It

Reversion Clause Effective if Not Used for Public Purposes

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., was informed in a letter this morning that should the city purchase the old post office building and at any time cease to use it for public purposes, the property would revert back to the federal government.

The mayor wrote to the federal government after the last council meeting when some aldermen advanced arguments in favor of buying the building and converting it into a police station.

He wanted to find out what, if any, were the "strings attached" should the city buy the structure. He received his answer from D. H. Sawyer, chief of the real estate section of the public buildings administration.

Sawyer said that purchase of the post office, at the price quoted to cities, by any political sub-division of government prohibits the sale of the property at any future date. He wrote: "Public use is deemed to be perpetual and should it cease, the property would revert to the federal government.

Argue at Meeting

The argument came up at the last council meeting when the building and grounds committee recommended the purchase of the post office for a police station.

After some aldermen indicated they would vote to buy the building, Mayor Goodland told the council he would veto any such move until it was definitely determined what "strings were attached" to the purchase and how much it would cost to remodel it for a police station.

The council then referred the matter back to the committee with instructions to find out if the city could own the property outright and to get figures from builders on the remodeling cost.

The city could buy the building for $9,000 half the appraised value of the property. Estimates on the cost of remodeling it for a police station ran as high as $20,000 at the last council session.

70 Scouts and Fathers At Troop 5 Bean Feed

Boy scouts of Troop 5, their fathers, members of the troop committee, and others who participated in the building of the troop's cabin at Center swamp attended a bean feed in the cabin last night at which F. N. Belanger, valley council executive board member, was the principal speaker.

More than 70 were present at the event. Dr. F. J. Rankin was toastmaster. Chriss Larsen, scout commissioner, spoke, and Dr. A. A. Denil showed movies taken during scout outings at the cabin and at the laying of the cornerstone of the new St. Therese church, the institution which sponsors Troop 5. Ernest Subora was songleader at the gathering.

Christmas, and handed her a carton of cigarets and a newspaper. Tucked inside the paper was a $100-bill.

Captain Gilbert announced the investigation was by no means concluded, and that the entire jury would be haled immediately before the Cook county grand jury.

The Orlando-Vinci jury deliberated 17 hours and 45 minutes before voting the acquittal. The two defendants were re-arrested at once and charged with ballot-stuffing. A hearing in the case was scheduled for Jan. 17 in felony court.

The case against Orlando and Vinci was one of the first to be tried since the grand jury initiated a sweeping investigation of dishonest voting last November. The state accused them of forging signatures to voting applications in the June 5 judicial election and instructing judges and clerks to mark some ballots and deface others.

Fellow defendants, who pleaded guilty, testified that Orlando and Vinci completely dominated the precinct officials, and the state produced 30 witnesses who disaffirmed their signatures on ballot applications.

Orlando and Vinci confined their defense to a calm denial of the charges, asserting they were victims of political skullduggery.

Farmers, CCC Boys Will Aid in Bird Feeding Program

650 Wildlife Food Stations are Being Established in State

Birds and small animals won't go hungry this winter in soil conservation project and CCC camp areas in Wisconsin.

M. F. Schweers, state coordinator for the service, reports that 650 "emergency" feeding stations are being established in the state. The stations, consisting of barrel or through feeders located adjacent to good cover, will feed 41,000 pounds of grain.

In addition to the stations, scores of "food patches," also located adjacent to good cover, will help birds and animals through the winter. Food patches are odd pieces of ground planted to grains by farmers desiring to aid wildlife.

Wisconsin's conservation department is cooperating with local sportsmen in continuing the wildlife programs in soil conservation service project and camp areas where active work is no longer carried on by the service.

It is estimated that approximately 10,000 quail and pheasants will make use of the Wisconsin's "emergency" feeding stations this winter. Additional thousands will use the food patches in project and camp areas.

Schweers stated that "soil and wildlife conservation go hand in hand," because the practices which conserve soil also conserve wildlife.

"Protection of timbered areas against fire and grazing, establishment of vegetative cover on denuded hillsides and in gullies, increase of hay and pasture acreages, and contour strip-cropping — all these not only reduce erosion but also improve conditions for wildlife," Schweers said.

2 NEW REAR MOTOR BUSES GO INTO SERVICE

The Wisconsin Michigan Power company has acquired two new buses, shown above, of the rear motor type for use on the Neenah-Appleton-Kaukauna run. Standing between the two new machines is August Brandt and in the doorway of one, at the right, is Herman Kloes, superintendent of transportation for the power company.

The new buses seat 27 passengers, three more than the older machines, and are longer and wider. The lighting and heating systems in the new vihicles are improved and the seating arrangement differs because of the position of the motor. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Badger Republicans Concur in Stand Against Finnish Loans

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Republican congressmen of Wisconsin are wholly in sympathy with the view of Senator Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican, that lending money to Finland would not only constitute an infringement of international and constitutional law but might open the door "for pressure group demands all down the highway of the future".

However, Progressive Representatives, Merlin Hull of Black River Falls and Bernard J. Gehrmann of Mellen, urge that congress grant aid to Finland, even though it be by lending war supplies rather than actual financial assistance.

Both Republican and Progressive Wisconsin congressmen, on the other hand, favor the president's proposal to utilize payments of the Finnish debt for the relief of the Finns, themselves.

Representative Hull said that, in his opinion, "We better give first consideration to the countries, like Finland, which pay their debts."

Representative Joshua L. Johns, Appleton Republican, objects that, "If we are to remain neutral, we must not furnish money to any foreign nation. Though it is true Finland has paid her debts, it's most doubtful whether we should advance any money".

Other Republican congressmen concur with Johns. Representative Charles Hawks, Jr., Horicon Republican, adds that, 'The United States got into the last war by making loans. We don't want to submit to the danger again".

Despite the opposition of many congressmen to lend funds to Finland by congressional action, they all agree with Senator Wiley that "if the individual citizen, or citizen groups, desire to give, then let them give."

Springfield Has Problems But Manages to Get Along

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Springfield, O.—The city of Springfield closed its year's relief activities without a deficit.—These expenses are about $5.000 a month. For this month the city commissioners have allowed $5.500.

In the dingy, cast-off building on North Fountain avenue which is used to joint city and county relief headquarters, a dozen young and middle-aged men stood indifferently around, bundled in ragged work-clothing against the zero weather. At the bright, airy, modern office—headquarters of the state employment center—three or four persons were at the counter. This office, in the local chamber of commerce building on High street, is operated jointly by the state and federal employment service and the state unemployment compensation service. There were the two places where the unemployed might be expected to be clamoring for food or work. It was a cold but sunny forenoon. Neither place was doing any business.

Clapper

We know, from the active application file of the state employment service, that about 5,300 persons here want work. The local chamber of commerce figures give current employment in Springfield at about 14,000. The proportion of unemployed therefore appears to be quite high.

City relief headquarters carries between 450 and 500 cases. The first week in January 80 new applications came in. Food and fuel are provided, and in emergencies rent. The average allowance amounts to about $10 a month per family. Supposedly only the temporary cases are handled by the city. The county is supposed to take all permanent cases—that is of persons unable to work, the unemployables.

WPA is carrying a constantly shrinking share of the load. WPA now carries about 1,500 cases—half of the number carried a year ago. Local employment is up almost that amount.

At the state employment center, 60 claims for unemployment insurance were filed in the first week of January, the reflection probably of some post-holiday dismissals. During the past year about 2,500 persons drawing unemployment compensation did not exhaust their benefits. The benefits run for 16 weeks and those persons must have found new employment before they had drawn their 16 weekly payments.

Dayton Has Boom But Is Scratching For Funds

A certain amount of haggling between city and county goes on continuously. WPA has been furnishing $10,000 a month for a sewing project and a house keeping aid project, the two employing more than 200 women from the relief rolls The city has been furnishing the building and the county has been putting up part of the cost of the materials. Now the county says the women are temporary relief cases and properly are the city's responsibility. WPA will not continue such projects without a share of local co-operation.

Springfield's rival neighbor, Dayton, is enjoying payrolls exceeded only in the 1929 and 1937 boom years, but it has 13,500 on relief and is scratching for funds. WPA has just laid off 500 men because Dayton would not continue its 25 per cent share of the cost. Jobbers are advancing food on credit for city relief. Springfield has had no such boom as Dayton but it isn't having the relief headaches either The figures show the existence of real unemployment here, yet somehow people are getting along—they are not mobbing relief and employment headquarters, at any rate.

"Some of our people are having a hard time," one minister of the gospel told me. "The most tragic case I know of was a member of my congregation who came to me and said: 'I have to get on relief but the only way I can do it is to say I am a democrat. You know I'm not a democrat but it won't be lying when I have to tell the relief people that I am a democrat.'"

Why Not New Car?

THE slate's clean, the past is past, you're making a new beginning on a new year you hope will be happier and finer and richer — how about doing the job up right?

You spot the fun possibilities in this brilliant and buoyant Buick just by watching it flash by, but have you been in to try it?

Do you know what it's like — first hand, we mean — to have a hundred-plus Dynaflash horsepower waiting your treadle-foot's nudge? Have you sampled the thrill in such an engine micro-poise-balanced to smoothness a wrist watch can't hope to equal?

Today's winter-roughened roads give you swell chance to try out BuiCoil Springing's gentle ride — raw weather emphasizes the stout snugness of Unisteel Bodies by Fisher and the convenience of the Flash-Way Direction Signal.

Now's when you most need firm new rubber — sure, soft, tiptoe brakes — Buick's automatic choke — stout, taut frames and rugged bodies, and why wait for spring to buy beauty that gives your spirits a lift?

Then too, driving speeds are naturally lower now and driving distances shorter, making this the best time of all to get a car properly started in life.

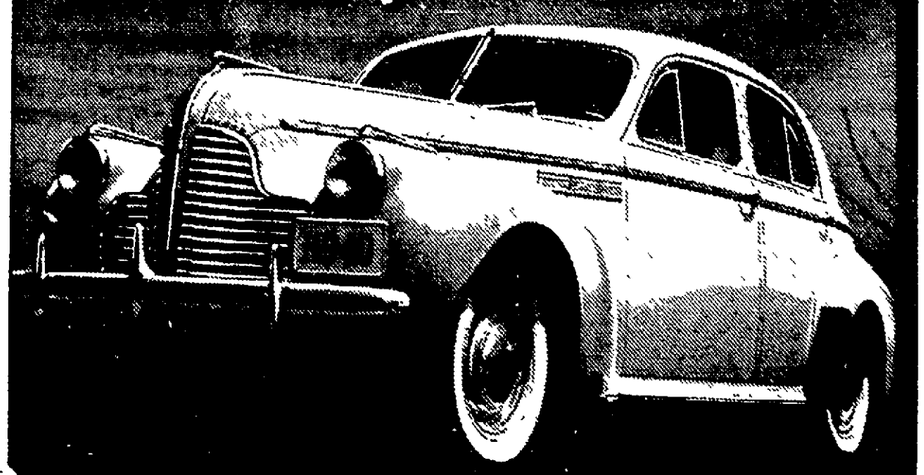

So figure it out! It's a new year. You've turned a new leaf. Ask your Buick dealer what a new Buick will cost you now — and let every month of 1940 contribute to a happy new year!

BUT THE WAGNER ACT IS SACRED!

The grand jury at Los Angeles has indicted William Bioff for criminal evasion of income taxes.

Bioff, it may be remembered, is the man against whom Mr. Pegler aimed the shafts of his ridicule and contempt for quitting the business of selling female human flesh retail on Halsted street to the wholesale occupation of selling men and women through a labor organization of which he somehow became the dominant officer without the consent of the membership.

The grand jury accused Mr. Bioff in two recent consecutive years of having an income of $33,000 in one year and $176,000 in the next and reporting but a trivial fraction to the collector.

This man stresses the necessity of amending the Wagner Act in certain particulars dwelt upon in this column before but concerning which the administration would have nothing to do.

For no ex-convict who stands unpardoned should be permitted to exercise authority in a labor union, a corporation, or any other instrumentality by which legitimate business or activities of the country or its people are carried on. The need for such a rule may find many more instances to support it than Bioff and his spotted career.

A similar need in relation to corporations was publicized by the exposure and suicide of Musica, the man who stealthily became head of McKesson & Robbins, a great and legitimate wholesale drug house.

Perhaps the Bioff case, particularly if trial procedure supports the credibility of the evidence introduced before the grand jury, may expose anew the heartless methods employed by cunning criminals of ghoulish tendencies to strip the legitimate labor movement of everything they can for their own pockets. Certainly no man should hold a position of authority in labor any more than in a commercial enterprise without the vote of a majority of those for whom he speaks.

And firally, what of a national labor act that makes it possible for a relatively minor official to shake the workers down for $176,000 a year?

A STRAIGHT UTILITY YARDSTICK

The Associated Gas & Electric, one of those gigantic utility holding companies erected like a skeleton of scantlings over the operating companies, has finally entered the bankruptcy court seeking a reorganization.

It was forced to ask the protection of the court because SEC would no longer permit it to drain the operating companies to meet its own bloated obligations.

On one occasion some years ago the Post-Crescent in this column reviewed the several hundred companies that formed this spread eagle concern. There were so many of them, and of such a variety, and practically all of them well loaded with debt, that a fair reserve of cash could be shuttled around from one to another to liquidate the most pressing obligations while the operating companies, the real workers, toiled day and night to meet the heavy demands upon them by their parent companies and all their step-parents, too.

Finally came the day when SEC halted the payment of any more dividends by the operating companies to the various units of the superstructure above them in order "to protect the financial integrity of the various operating units."

Here, of course, is another yardstick that is straight and fair. The creation of SEC did not involve the expenditures of hundreds of millions or billions of the people's funds. It involved only the selection of a high grade personnel to watch after the people's interests in relation to the operation of public utilities. SEC has on many occasions demonstrated plainly the practically complete power and control of the government over untilities, the authority to regulate their affairs, control the voting of dividends by them, even restrict the employment of their cash balances, in order to keep the operating units in solvent, healthy condition, and able to comply with orders respecting the rate structure which again is fixed by these representatives of the public.

The power which the people have over their utilities, as again indicated by the course of the Associated Gas & Electric, is a complete barrier to the investment of huge sums of the people's money in competing utilities simply because it presents this unanswerable question: If the people acting through their selected commissions cannot intelligently regulate utilities how can they expect to intelligently operate them?

STOP THE DIES INVESTIGATION!

Something like a carefully organized campaign to stop the Dies investigation appears to have been launched.

At any rate numerous interviews are getting into the press damning the committee with the usual faint praise but knitting together certain arguments why "the investigation has gone far enough" or that it "has accomplished its purpose" and inferring that possibly if the country gets any more truth concerning the corruption underlying this phase of the New Deal it will get sick to its stomach.

The effort to douse the glim comes just at the time when the committee is getting clear inside on the CIO control of the government, on what may turn out to be John L. Lewis making appointments to the National Labor Relations Board in the name of the President, of the appointment of men to these judicial duties who are nothing more than lackeys, something less than stooges, in the CIO setup.

We should say that the New Dealers in an election year should all get together and suppress the Dies committee. It is likely to unmask a squirming bunch of reptiles that would even make the Chicago municipal courts look clean.

SWEARING THE FOP IS A WORKER

There is about the administration, its swaggering contempt for or forgetfulness of the facts and the sweet brazenness with which it says the devil is an angel, that not only sets it apart as a stumbling blusterer of the first water but obtains for it a certain advantage among those who are affected by imperious, arbitrary or high-handed methods.

Its festivities on General Jackson's birthday, its effort to gild the dude with silks and swear he is an exact replica of the honest, overalled worker of a hundred years ago, its attempt even to compare itself with its unparalleled profligacy studded by an accumulated debt, the highest in history, to the Jackson administration of painstaking frugality that not only wiped out the debt but accumulated a surplus of 99 million dollars in the treasury, far outshines any of the sleight-of-hand or ventriloquism of the ages.

It is as if a woman of the alleys, stained and smeared with sin, with a whisky flask in her only pocket, had cast about her shoulders the pure white robe of a vestal virgin and dropped her eyes in prayer.

Trembling lips, closed eyes and bowed head are not sure signs of contrite heart by any means.

FLYING MACHINES TO FINLAND

There has been quite a noticeable alteration to Finnish and Russian communiques.

When the war started the Finns reported daily about the Russian planes attacking their towns. Now the Russians are reporting that some Finnish planes have been shot down.

At the outset of the war the Finns had one serious lack and that was in respect to flying machines. It is evident that this branch of the Finnish resistance is becoming as lusty as the ground branch.

Russia thought this adventure in Finland would be something of a lark. Already it is in deadly fear for the safety of Leningrad. And since the Finnish air armada gave signs of life the Russians have adnered more carefully to attacking legitimate objects with their bombers instead of women and children.

Finland is not only entitled to a crested plume for its heroic resistance, in fact its colossal nerve in merely coming to grips with a nation whose resources are, comparatively, inexhaustible, but it has also earned the thanks of democracy the world over for showing what a free people who know what they are fighting for and about can do as against great hordes driven like dumb cattle to the slaughter.

STATUES ON THE MOUNTAINTOPS

The famous "Christ of the Andes," the huge figure that stands on the mountains between Chile and Argentina and that was erected in thanksgiving by both people at their ability to settle an acrimonious dispute by sending the troops home, now has two competitors in this western world.

There is the great "Corcovado" so constructed to look down upon the capital of Brazil, but there is also nearing completion another monument of the Prince of Peace built on a mountain near El Paso, Texas, and so placed, whether with purpose to that effect or not, that Mexicans may see.

The El Paso statue is 40 feet high which makes it greater than the "Christ of the Andes" and but half as tall as the "Corcovado."

Unhappily must it be recorded that statuary of this impressive kind may never get beyond the point of ornamenting the countryside. All depends upon whether the feelings which are so genuine at the time they are carved into stone can be transferred to human breasts when occasions arise that are likely to fill them with fierce anger.

Sewers and sewage are receiving increased attention in Germany. Sewage sludge is being used for fertilizer on farm lands. Scientists are interested in sewer gas as a motor fuel.

The filament of a small, 6-watt 115-volt lamp, such as might be used for a night light, is thinner than human hair. Its diameter is less than five one-thousandths of an inch.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—A waiter in one of the Rockefeller Center restaurants was telling me some of the peculiarities of radio performers whom he serves.

Peter Van Steeden (he said) is one of those fellows who is always asking "What's good today?"—and actually following the waiter's recommendations. Elsie Hitz, one of the air's busiest actresses, is a loaf sugar collector who invariably tucks a few cubes in her purse for the mounted policeman's horse. Kay Kyser is a hurry-up eater who usually greets the waiter with: "If you knew how hungry I am, you wouldn't even stop to pick up a tip until you'd fed me." Andre Kostelanez goes into elaborate detail, instructing the waiter how he wants each dish prepared.

A musician who has a tender feeling for waiters is Dr. Frank Black. He probably has listened to more songs written by waiters than any living man. It dates from many years ago when a waiter in Philadelphia brought Dr. Black (a sheaf of compositions to look over—compositions from which came a series of hit tunes. The maestro has been hoping for history to repeat itself ever since.

Past and Present: The first official city directory, published in 1786 didn't list a single person named Cohen, but look at it today.

New York City is so prejudiced in favor of white eggs over brown that the whites actually command a premium in the market. In Boston, it's vice versa. There may be a great lesson in this somewhere, but for the moment it escapes me.

Germany's anti-semitic laws aren't so original. In New York in 1685 a law was passed prohibiting Jews from selling at retail or worshipping within the city limits.

Nor was it a new thing to point fingers and cry "Dictator" at an American leader. Europeans in the late 1770's called George Washington "Dictator of America" because of the almost limitless military powers granted him.

I was just thinking, and it is doubtless unimportant, that Nature affords examples of virtues which, if people were smart enough to copy, would make life comparatively simple.

Squirrels scamper by, gathering winter's food supply and carefully putting it away. That, from the squirrel, is the lesson of Thrift.

The beaver labors, building his dam; Industry.

The dog demonstrates the virtue of Devotion.

From the throats of birds come Song.

Horses bend to the pull uncomplainingly—the virtue of willing Obedience.

Bees demonstrate Social Discipline. Cats, crouched by mouse holes, teach Patience. Robins, bringing the choicest worms back to the nest and shoving them down the hungry throats of their young, teach Parental Love and Self-denial.

It is just a passing thought, doubtless not important at all.

The Story Corner: Tony Wons, one of the air's first philosophers and still at it, tells this one:

In a certain community in southern Illinois, the town fathers, moved by pity, voted an income to the village half-wit. Dull but honest, the fellow refused to accept it unless given a chance to earn it. To make him feel better, the town fathers assigned him the task of keeping the cannon on the village green polished.

Years passed, and the cannon never failed to shine. The half-wit managed to buy new clothing from time to time and even to save some money. One day he walked into the town hall and announced he was resigning.

"I've been able to save some money on this job," he announced gravely, "and I've bought a cannon of my own. I'm going into business for myself!"

And then there was the young lady who, applying for a job in Phil Spitalny's All-Girl orchestra, said she had taken six violin lessons. "You think you could play in my band with only six lessons?" said the amazed Spitalny. "Do you realize that the members of my orchestra have studied for years and years?"

"So what?" replied the applicant. "Can I help it if they ain't smart?"

HER DIAMOND RING

Her diamond ring
Is without flaw,
Clear as a spring,
Perfect like her.
Jewel so bright,
In it we saw,
Reflecting light,
Her character.

Symbols can speak
Plain words and fond
They hear who seek
Truth as they wend
United ways.
Here is the bond!
A ring that says

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—That conflict on national policy which grinds and grinds within the government was well illustrated here at one of the academic brain conventions which hit Washington during the Christmas-New Year holidays when professors are free from classes.

Grover

The grinding continues relentlessly year in and year out, with first one side gaining a bit and then another. But for the most part, these major influences on the nation are virtually forgotten by almost every one except leading historians and those within the government who are forever concerned over "grand strategy."

They blossom but so seldom that when they do, they startle casual readers. They even startled a few of the thousand or more historians who sat arm to arm in a Washington hotel ballroom while A. Whitney Griswold, of Yale's department of government and international relations, and Captain W. D. Puleston, United States Navy, retired, presented a few of the rival viewpoints.

To Fight Or Not?

Should we preserve our position in the Far East, by force of arms if necessary?

No, said Griswold. He has written repeatedly that it was a bad move for the United States ever to have taken on the responsibility of the Philippines. He believes the country now thinks the same.

"The Washington and London naval treaties, the Philippine independence act, and last but not least the cash-and-carry neutrality law showed a very substantial qualification of the 'command-of-the-sea' doctrine," he said.

Did Captain Puleston agree with him? He did not. He reflects the navy's almost unanimous view that the theories of sea power outlined a generation ago by Captain Mahan are more in force now than ever before.

"When Americans realize," he said, "that the best naval defense is a naval offense, I am convinced they will provide the necessary bases for the American fleet in the Far East." (These, no doubt, would be either in the Philippines or at Guam, or both.)

"If the Philippines did not exist, it would still be necessary for the United States to protect its interest in the Far East," he continued.

On the other hand, Griswold argued that there were no grounds in experience for the assertions of the sea-minded that America must fight or be ready to fight in all parts of the world to protect its foreign trade lines. That, he said, is a doctrine which Captain Mahan carried over from the British.

"Because the welfare of so few Americans, as compared with Englishmen, was bound up with overseas traffic of any kind," he said, "the American people never wished to do those things as much as the British."

But that is a mistaken policy, said the naval man. "Professor Griswold states that the United States invests less capital abroad than Great Britain. This is one of the contributing causes to the world crisis. Economists almost universally agree that the sudden cessation of American capital exports in 1929 was an important cause of the financial crisis. The continued 'looking-inwardness' of American citizens protracts the depression."

The thing goes on endlessly. Just now the naval power expansionists have the upper hand. The navy is growing greatly. Mahanistic Captain Puleston glories in it.

"Americans may not want any more territory now," he says, "but there have been other occasions in American history when they did not want territory and later changed their minds."

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

I see there's some opposition to the quints being shown at the World's fair, but if they sign up they will be the best attraction so far. It was a mistake to depend on a trylon and a perisphere. Five trylons and five perispheres wouldn't do what those five kids will do for it. And that goes for five Grover Whalens, too.

But a strict watch will have to be kept on Billy Rose. He will have the quints doing a daily swimming act, with five jazz bands, five Johnny Weissmullers five times daily if he ain't kept under observation.

When a corporation of 15,000 workers votes five to one against joining any labor union, and only 1,079 vote to join CIO it's news. That's what happened at the Endicott-Johnson shoe plant. It was almost as if those workers carried banners reading "union labor unfair." They were all shoemakers, but they gave organized labor a boot.

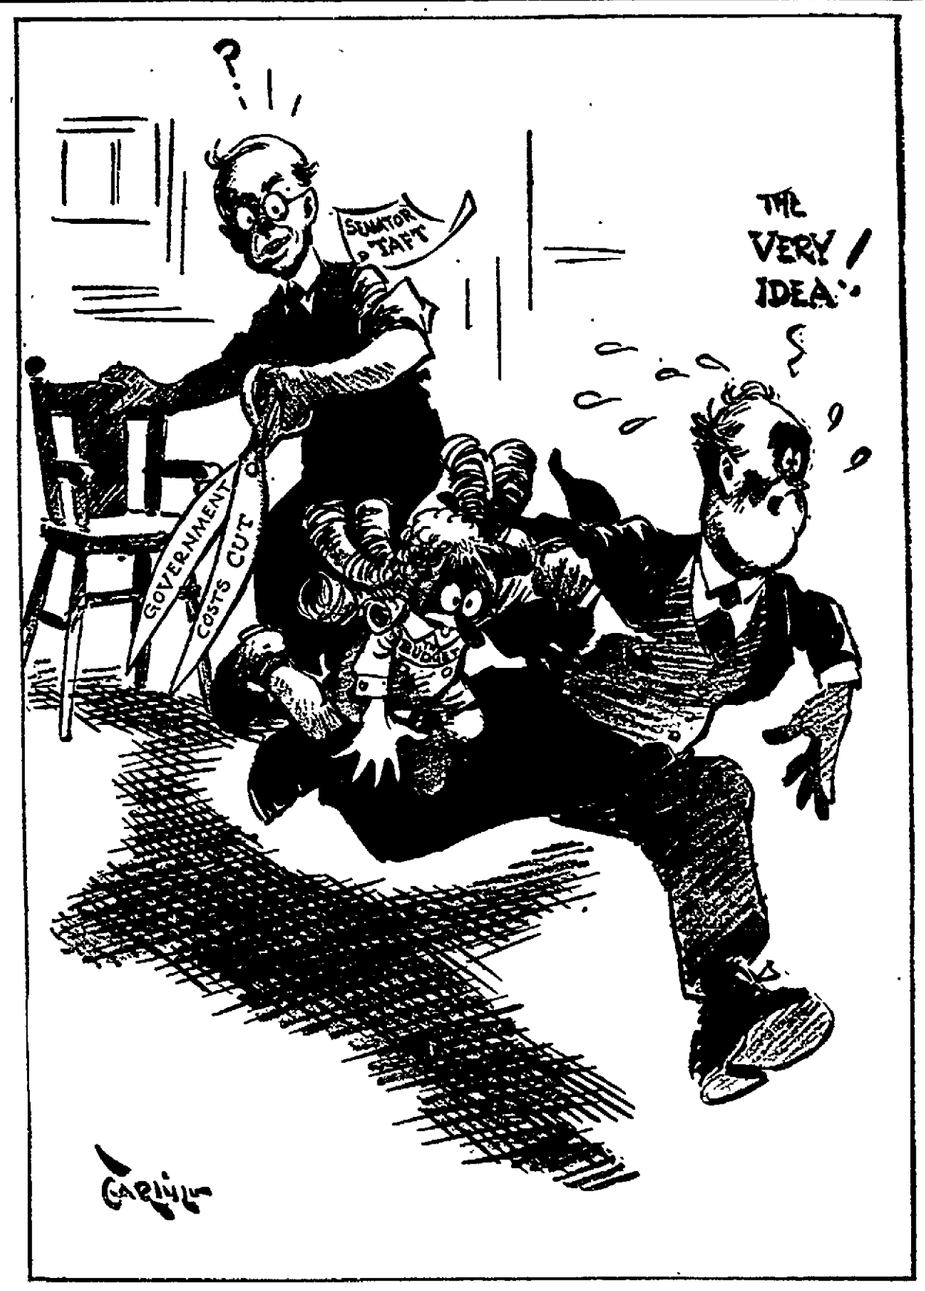

George Johnson, head of the company, had put through profit-sharing recreational centers hospitalization and low-cost housing for the workers years ago, and it seems to pay.

I was glad to see that the insurance companies after nine years have decided that Judge Crater is dead. They won't pay for the double indemnity for death by violence, however, although most people would think that it was violent enough for a prominent judge to leave the bench one afternoon and never be heard from again.

Madison Firm Awarded $21,095 Navy Contract

Washington —(AP)— The Gisholt Machine company., Madison, Wis., yesterday was awarded a $21,095 navy contract for turret lathes.

OF COURSE THE PRESIDENT WANTS TO BALANCE THE BUDGET, BUT NOT VERY MUCH

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It has been said that if the Democrats of Wisconsin were to direct the energy they use in fighting among themselves in a campaign against their political opponents they might sometime rise to a position above that which they have historically occupied in state affairs, a position which has given them a victory about once in a generation, or less.

Wyngaard

It is a common-place in political circles that Democrats spill more vitriol, spend more time and greater effort in their factional warfare than they do in their formal state campaigns each biennium. Some observers may wonder whether the two facts aren't related, that Democratic power is generally spent before the campaigns for votes in state elections begin.

ONCE AGAIN

At any rate, they are at it again. Never closely unified, always weakened by jealous rivalries and futile squabbling, the Democratic party of Wisconsin, which sank to a dangerous low in power in 1938, is today divided along lines so bitter as to raise the question whether the party will be able to muster a serious campaign organization in the state this summer and fall.

It is seemingly a characteristic of Wisconsin Democrats also, at least in recent years, that the root of their internecine difficulties shall be patronage. The current dog fight in the Democratic party is inspired by charges of the Democratic Party organization of Wisconsin that the old time leaders betrayed the cause by making a deal with the LaFollettes in the distribution of census patronage.

Specifically the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, organized recently to combat "reactionary" Democrats and to advocate the policies of the New Deal, charge the old line leaders, including National Committeeman Broughton and Leo T. Crowley, with giving to LaFollette Progressives jobs which properly belonged to Democrats.

APPARENT FACT

There is little doubt in political circles that the charge has some substance, although it is somewhat ironical to have the New Dealers' group make the allegation when that same coterie recently beckoned to the LaFollettes for a 1940 state alliance. Stories have circulated for weeks that Senator LaFollette (who has sometimes been described as a senator without the traditional boon of patronage) and Crowley got together to arrange for a 50-50 distribution of Wisconsin census plums.

What that alliance may mean for 1940 anyone can guess. The principals aren't talking about it.

What is significant, however, is the reversion of the Democratic leadership in Wisconsin to its historic role, a minority balance of power group employed by the LaFollettes to fight the Republicans.

Only occasionally since the turn of the century have the Democrats of Wisconsin approached a position of power. In the legislature, and frequently in elections, they were allied with the Progressives, particularly in the days of "Old Bob" when that shrewd political master subtly decoyed them into his camp by such sugary appeals as references to "fair minded Democrats".

The fact that the Democratic party has been held together at all, during the long and sterile periods of Republican and Progressive supremacy, is due almost exclusively to the fact that an occasional Democratic president was elected, and the hope that sometime the Progressives and the LaFollettes would fade from the picture. National patronage held an organization of sorts together, and it was aided by the vague hope that the eventual demolition of the LaFollette party would give it a chance to return to majority status. For 1940, however, that premise has apparently been abandoned. A Democratic-Progressive Coalition, unless all signs fail, is now in the making.

Personal Health Talks

SUBNUTRITION

China, where, if you are child-minded, doctors are paid as long as patients remain well, but not if the patient becomes ill, has never been famous for the good health of the people.

New Zealand is far enough away from this country to rival China in legend and myth. In recent years the low death rate in New Zealand, particularly the low rate among infants, has been much publicized on this continent. Probably the New Zealand babies get a better break than American babies do. Perhaps New Zealand mothers try harder than American mothers to be 100% mothers, that is, to nurse their babies. Or perhaps New Zealand mothers are less fearful of fresh air and sunshine for their infants. Here in America it does seem that amateur mothers, with few exceptions, are as dumb about this as their great grandmothers were a century ago. For that matter, so are their half-baked pediatrists.

Recent survey of food consumption in New Zealand shows that each person there consumes daily from 6 to 7 ounces of sugar, approximately a pound of red meat (New Zealanders are the biggest meat eaters in the world), one-half pound of white flour, two-thirds of a pint of milk, two-thirds of an egg, one-third ounce of cheese, and from 2 to 3 ounces of butter (not margarine). Most of the milk is taken by adults in tea and the egg in cakes. Thus the New Zealander's diet is not greatly superior to the diet of the poorer folk in England. Meat is first class protein, biologically complete, that is, it includes all of the amino acids required for human nutrition, growth and repair, unlike soy bean, corn, peas, wheat and some other sources of protein. But the balance of the modern New Zealand diet — white bread, cakes, sugar and tea falls far short of the essentials of nutrition.

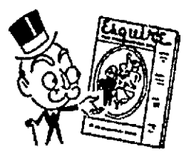

In New Zealand 97 per cent of the school children suffer with dental caries, and more than 50 per cent of adults have artificial teeth. One in every twenty persons in the country is in hospital in the year, chiefly for appendicitis, tonsil troubles, goitre. Adults in New Zealand suffer to a considerable degree from digestive troubles, neuritis and so-called rheumatism.

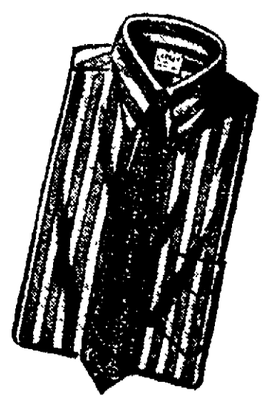

Up to the age of eight or ten months the New Zealand children thrive — New Zealand still has a low infant morality rate. After that age the daily ration of milk, cod liver oil (to supply vitamin D and vitamin A) and orange juice (to supply vitamin C) is cut down, in New Zealand as it is too commonly in America, and the child's diet consists chiefly of refined carbohydrates (starches and sugars). Children on the latter diet suffer from subnutrition, which is indicated by decay of the teeth.

In New Zealand the people consume great quantities of cakes and pastry, many depending on such food as a mainstay, along with strong tea, plentifully sugared. Such a diet is deficient in the essential vitamins B-complex and D, and in calcium, iron and iodine.

It would seem that New Zealand people could not be much worse off if they lived in the United States.

Wants Department Put in Charge of Trade Agreements

Hull Would Make Ratification by Senate Unnecessary—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Cordell Hull, veteran of many battles in congress where for years as a member of the house and later as a member of the senate, he championed the cause of moderate tariffs, has embarked upon one of the most difficult tasks of his career—to persuade congress to renew the powers hitherto delegated in the department of state to make reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations without ratification by the senate.

Lawrence

Mr. Hull enters by his first plea before the ways and means committee a controversy that is complicated and technical because it relates to thousands of items of tariff rates. His broad thesis has been that reciprocity is a better way to make tariff arrangements with foreign powers than America's method of log-rolling in congress. The secretary contends, moreover, that in working toward a general reduction of tariff barriers, the trend is away from economic friction and economic nationalism and toward international cooperation.

The viewpoint of Mr. Hull has found support inside the Republican as well as the Democratic party, but it also has encountered opposition in both. It is truly a non-partisan issue, though, to be sure, before the present fight is over, most of the Republicans will be lined up against renewal of the power of negotiation sought by the department of state.

Record Of Agreements

The record of reciprocal agreements is the subject of much detailed discussion—the department of state claiming that trade on the whole has been increased, whereas opponents have pointed to specific industries where there have been adverse effects.

Naturally, all the interests and businesses which have been faced with a certain amount of foreign competition are anxious to see the trade agreement power terminated, while persons and interests anxious to see foreign trade enlarged are urging the further making of reciprocity agreements.

Insistence that reciprocity is a good thing in principle, but that all trade agreements must be ratified by the senate because they are treaties, is the principal argument of those who oppose Mr. Hull's recommendation for extension of the negotiating power. It is contended, for instance, that the trade agreement act is itself unconstitutional, though the issue has never been specifically passed upon by the supreme court. Certainly the power to make tariff duties when delegated by congress to a tariff commission or board has been upheld as constitutional in what are known as the "flexible tariff" cases, and there never has been any question about the power of the executives to make agreements by diplomatic notes or conventions. The famous Hay "open door" policy in the far east which contained an exchange of notes with various foreign governments on trade opportunities in China was never submitted to the senate for ratification by the Republican administration which negotiated it, and there have been many other conspicuous cases of the same thing.

Instant Action

If it is within the power of congress to give the executive, as it gave to President Coolidge, the right to change tariff duties within certain limits, it will be asserted that congress can delegate the same discretion to the department of state or to the president, who can act on recommendation of the secretary of state. Foreign governments have greater flexibility than does the American government because under parliamentary systems changes in tariff rates can be made overnight. The present movement for delegating power to the department of state grew out of the uncertain conditions in world commerce, changes in currency and exchange rates which happen almost overnight and the desire to put America on a basis that would permit instant action instead of long delays while waiting for congress to reconvene.

But the real opposition to the trade agreement power is not on constitutional grounds. It is economic and the effort to compel the secretary of state to submit his future agreements to ratification by the senate would, if successful, mean the end of trade agreements of the reciprocal type that alter tariff duties. For treaties require a two-thirds vote of the senate and it would be virtually impossible on a tariff issue to get two-thirds. It would be much easier to revise a tariff law, because it requires only a majority of each house and the president has the power of veto.

Besides, it would be next to impossible for a trade agreement to be negotiated with two-thirds of the senate and local political considerations to be satisfied, and foreign governments to be handled with delicacy. The alternative to senate ratification is the present delegated power, but with safeguards, so that American interests will be assured hearings before and after certain tentative decisions have been reached. Thus at no time would American producers lose an opportunity to make their protests against adverse rulings.

Big Lumber Deal Fails, Negotiations Continue

Boston —(AP)— The biggest lumber deal in American history—involving payment of $14,400,000 for $600,000,000 board feet of New England hurricane-felled timber—collapsed Thursday, but the potential buyers sought to reopen negotiations at an early date.

Terming some of the details "too risky," the Northeastern Timber Marketing association of Detroit permitted the original contract in the deal to expire at midnight by failing to post the required $750,000 bond or a $100,000 down payment.

Herman I. Hyman, the association's representative, said, however, that the deal was far from dead and that negotiations for a new contract with the Northeastern Timber Salvage administration, a federal agency which coordinated clearing of the forests after the disastrous 1938 hurricane, would get underway soon.

My Neighbor Says—

Never use a damp or wet cloth or holder in removing a hot dish from the oven or stove. A dry one prevents the heat from penetrating and scorching the fingers.

When cleaning celery, use a vegetable brush. It gets into the grooves and cleans the celery better than it can be cleaned otherwise.

Parents Can be Too Choosy in Regulating Child's Playmates

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Should I let my children play with undesirables?"

No. But one ought to be quite certain in one's mind as to what undesirable means. I think that first of all the family standards ought to be reviewed and perhaps changed to meet the characteristic needs of each child. What might be desirable for a healthy little boy of nine might not be at all desirable for a frail sensitive boy of that age. Their social needs are different, the effect of other children's social gifts or deficiencies would be different for each.

The usual healthy child can get along well with the rest of the usual healthy ones. To be sure some of them will not be as mannerly as others; some will use language that the others are trained not to use. Some will have strong ideas on what is good and what is not regarding religion and politics. These stout opinions may lead to quarrels. Even so, one would hesitate to label the sturdy positivist of one sort or another, "Undesirable."

Humanity is inclined to be decent. Most of the children are good and want to do what is right if they can find what that is. Their different ways of being right and good may not sit well with some of the mothers, but every mother's child is a neighbor's child to somebody, and a source of trouble unless good sense prevails.

All children are experimenting with life. All of them make mistakes, yours as well as the neighbors'. By playing together, sharing experiences, they learn from each other. No harm will come to them through these experiences as long as the home background is good. Some day in the future every child, of every home, must stand alone and face life's problems. It is against that day that we are working so hard to strengthen them. Isolating them, quarantining them against life, is not the way to prepare them.

The child who has been shielded and sheltered from all contacts is unable to face the hard facts when he is hit in the face with them. The world is not kind. Life in it is not a friendly helpful association, but a battle that goes to the strong. It is no kindness to teach children otherwise. The few friends they have will be like towers of refuge while the strangers, the indifferent, and the hostile, will be everywhere. It is only fair then to let children make their own way among their associates and not be too nice about selecting them.

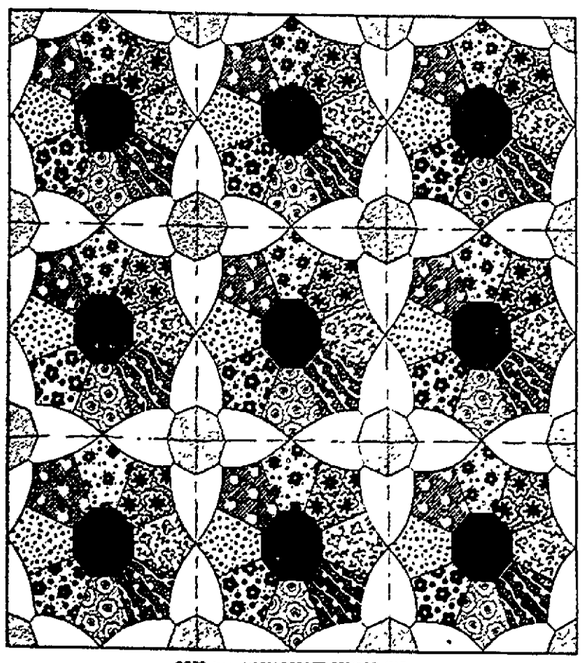

There are some undesirable children. That truth must be accepted and acted upon. Those who are unhealthy in body and mind are undesirable. Children who are not clean, who are likely to carry disease, are certainly undesirable. But for the rest, they are the coming generation with whom your child, and the neighbor's children will have to live. It is best that they learn how to live together at the start.

And it is well to remember that life is not nice. Neither are the children. They are experimenting, learning how to adjust themselves to an overnice world, a conventionalized place where man's rules try to guide creatures who are strangers to all they stand for.

Be patient with children, all of them!

Conceding of One Trick May Assure Hand

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The greatest obstacle to overcome on hands of a certain type is the perversity of human nature. Instinctively, most players rebel against conceding a trick that, on the surface, appears easy to win. The expert, however, realizes that it is merely a sound investment to concede one unimportant trick in order to insure winning all the rest.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	2 clubs	2 spades	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, on lead, decided that North's four club cue bid had been honest and that, moreover, the opponents were well prepared for a club opening. Therefore, he selected the jack of hearts as the most propitious for his side.

Declarer studied the situation very carefully before he played from the dummy. It was obvious that there was more than one line of attack and quite properly he wanted to choose the one with the best "percentage." In sight were five spade tricks, two in hearts, two in diamonds, and one in clubs. This total of ten could be raised in one of three ways. One of these was to ruff losing clubs in the dummy, but this would involve three entries to the closed hand. The second plan was to ruff only one club, discard the other on the diamond king and attempt to establish the hearts with the loss of only one trick. This would require fewer entries, but would depend on a heart break of 3-2. The third, and chosen line, was the establishment of the dummy as the master hand.

The opening lead was allowed to ride to the king. (When East's queen was played over the jack, declarer concluded that the hearts would not break.)

Declarer then made the crucial play of the hand. He led his singleton diamond and played the eight from dummy! His reasoning was sound: he could not afford to ruff two diamonds to establish the suit against a normal 4-2 break because he would then he reduced to three trumps against a very probable four trumps in one hand. Passing the diamond would allow for that suit's establishment with only one ruff.

Future events proved his wisdom. East won the diamond trick, but was helpless. He did the best he could, removing the club ace, but declarer simply ruffed a low diamond with a high trump and then drew the trumps, discarding dummy's losing hearts. The last five tricks were won by the established diamond suit and the heart ace.

TABLE SERVING

Dear Mrs. Post: I hope you will print the answers to my list of questions. I honestly believe all of them would be of interest to some of your readers.

1—When serving without help, or with an extra maid who sometimes comes in to cook, is it permissible to use a tea wagon?

Ans. Whenever practical, service should of course be considered from the angle of good form, which takes special note of etiquette. But if one maid is going to serve twelve or fourteen people, then the use of a tea wagon would be obvious since it would be impossible for one person to carry so many plates from kitchen to table and back again, one at a time.

2—Do bouillon cups have one handle, or two, as cream soup cups?

Ans. They have two handles.

3—May bouillon, or other soup without solids, be eaten with a spoon, or is it supposed simply to be tasted and cooled with the spoon and then all of it drunk? In other words, is it bad manners to use a spoon for the entire cupful?

Ans. The whole cupful can be eaten with the spoon. Of course, you may exasperate those who are waiting for you to finish, but further than slowness, there is no rule against sipping it to the last drop.

4—When serving soup at the table from a tureen, does the hostess have a stack of soup plates and a stack of plates to stand the soup plates on before passing them?

Ans. No, she just has a stack of soup plates. The other plates are either at the places, or none are used.

5—Should the meat platter and the vegetable serving dishes be removed from the table after the host has finished carving and serving or left where they are in case any one wants a second serving?

Ans. They are left where they are—unless they can be taken back to the kitchen and kept hot on the range, and then passed by the maid later. Ideally, if the meal is short and the family's appetites are substantial, two dishes of each item are prepared and fresh ones put on in place of those which were in this case removed at once.

6—May a tray be used to remove salts and peppers and unused silver when the table is cleared for dessert?

Ans. Not may be, but must be! There is no other way to remove them.

7—Are butter plates supposed to be left on the table after the meat course if there is to be salad next, served with cheese and crackers?

Ans. They are left on until the table is cleared for dessert. Taking them off is what "clearing" means.

8—If dessert is served in the kitchen, as it is if small-stemmed glass dishes are used, how is the dessert silver brought to the table?

Ans. The glass is put on a doily and the doily is put on a plate, and the spoon is put at the side of the glass on the doily.

9—When are goblets better than tumblers, and vice versa?

Ans. A goblet is considered by many to be more formal than a tumbler, but actually they are interchangeable, and their selection a matter of individual taste.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you are moody and unhappy, or wear a chronic "sour puss" expression, or even contemplate suicide, be sure to read this Case Record today. The would-be suicide always has two major psychological ailments which can be eliminated by following the recommendations in today's article. Paste this in your scrapbook, for you will need this prescription many times in life, either for yourself, your children or neighbors and friends.

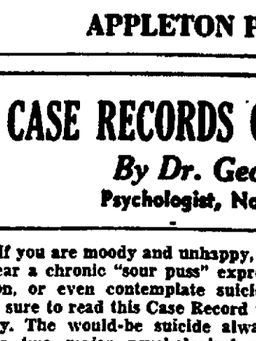

CASE P-153: Harvey B., aged 19, is a slender, anemic young fellow.

"He seems to be listless and unhappy," his go-getter type of father announced, irritably.

"He sits around and reads too much. He doesn't get enough exercise. In fact, I think he is pretty sissy in his actions, and hobbies.

"I tried to get him interested in my business, but he seems more unhappy when he is thrown among people.

"Actually, I am at my wit's end. Last week his mother and I found that he had swallowed iodine in an attempt to end it all. Something must be done. Dr. Crane, can't you give us some advice?"

DIAGNOSIS:

Attempted suicide indicates at least two significant things about the person who tries this escape mechanism.

First, it indicates that the external world is not sufficiently attractive to hold the interest of the victim.

People don't flee from that which they delight in. Use this psychological law as an axiom of therapy for those unhappy and morbid people who want to escape from this world.

If Harvey's external world is ominous, then we should analyze the situation more closely to find the specific reasons for his fear of it. What disturbs him so greatly? What does he dread? Or why is he humiliated into such a state that he wants to flee forever from his shame?

The Psychology Of Suicide

Suicide is only one of many escape mechanisms employed by people to get away from painful situations. Others include alcohol, dope, insanity, daydreaming, excessive sleep, vagabondage or the "hobo complex," and even the movies.

When I interviewed Harvey, I learned that he was a sensitive, introvertive boy whose dominant parents simply overshadowed his life. Where they were zestful, buoyant, full of life, he was timid and lacking in self-reliance.

Recently I told you that self-reliance means dependence on self. But that "self" will not help you much unless it is made up of hundreds of habits which produce successful adjustment to life.

This brings us to the second significant point regarding suicides. They are relatively inactive. It is another axiom of psychology that you cannot be active and be unhappy.

How To Cure Unhappiness

The gloomy people, with sour puss faces, are sluggish in physical and physiological activity. They need to dance or hike, or swim or ride horseback.

I am not being facetious when I say that a good big dose of Epsom salts will change the would-be suicide's viewpoint greatly.

To become happy, force yourself into contact with the outside world. Don't curl up beside the fire and try to enjoy a romance via the pages of a novel or short story magazine.

Go out and learn how to dance, how to skate, how to sing or play the banjo. Learn to swim. Develop friendships with people of your own age and of both sexes.

As you become adept in dealing with life, you also learn to love life, and conversely, you will never be interested in fleeing from it.

Harvey was literally anemic. He needed an iron tonic and an improvement in his red cell count. Then he needed to acquire social habits which would permit him to mingle successfully with real life situations. It took over a year to rebuild Harvey's personality, but he'll never attempt suicide again. He now has a large investment of happy interest in his external environment.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

One thing a man detests to see is a woman or girl who looks as if she accidentally fell into a flour barrel! Too light powder for her skin tone, too thickly applied definitely detracts from one's beauty, rather than enhances it.

The first step to correct powderng is selecting a shade of face powder which exactly matches your current skin tone. If you cannot find just the right shade sealed in a box, go to a store where a salesgirl will mix various shades until she gets just the blend most flattering to your skin. This service does not cost you any more than buying a box of powder of the wrong shade!

When you begin make up your face apply your protective cream or lotion first. Then take a fresh wad of absorbent cotton and powder. Allow it to set, then powder the second time.

Saturate another piece of cotton with olive oil, wring it as dry as possible and whisk it over your lashes and brows before brushing both with a darkener.

You should have a powder brush which you use to take off all but a thin film of the powder you have applied, brushing downward so any facial hair will be smoothed. You know even a tiny fuzz on your skin stands out if it is not brushed down after you have powdered.

A soft chamois removes powder which clings to the sides of your nose and in the corners of your mouth and eyes.

Never rub powder into your skin with a thick puff. It's certain to enlarge and clog the skin pores. Pat it on gently with the cotton or a downy puff.

If you use powdered rouge apply it after the first layer of powder and then cover it with a second layer. You will find that sufficient, natural looking color is left after brushing your skin with your powder brush.

Many girls like to dampen another fresh piece of cotton with their favorite cologne and press it gently all over the face as a final touch to making up. They feel this sets the powder so well that it is unnecessary to powder again for hours.

If Your Lips Are Dry

Very dry lips may be partly caused by caked powder and an oily lipstick is not the solution. After powdering clean your lips with a bit of cotton or astringent. Dry them thoroughly and then rouge them.

My leaflet for care of blemished skin is available upon request if you will write me care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp.

Lenroots to Observe Their Golden Wedding Anniversary Jan. 22

Washington —(AP)— A major date in a cluster of anniversaries being observed by Wisconsin's Lenroot family in Washington will be the golden wedding anniversary of Justice and Mrs. Irvine L. Lenroot, Jan. 22.

Coming a few weeks after their daughter, Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, celebrated 25 years service in the United States Children's Bureau, the wedding anniversary occurs only nine days before the judge celebrates his seventy-first birthday.

The former United States senator from Wisconsin, who served 18 years in congress before receiving his appointment from former President Herbert Hoover as associate justice of the court of customs and patent appeals in 1929, looked forward to a quiet observance of the golden wedding anniversary.

Explaining that Mrs. Lenroot, 80, had been an invalid the last three years, the judge said their daughter and "perhaps a few friends" would be at home on the anniversary.

If canned chicken is used in preparing creamed chicken or casseroles the flavor is improved by adding a can of chicken broth — not soup, as a basis of the cream sauce.

Glorifying Children May Give Them Wrong Outlook on Life

BY DOROTHY DIX

It is without doubt a benevolent provision of nature that makes every old hen think she has hatched out a swan. Otherwise there would be a marked decline in the population. For most of us would be drowned at birth if our mothers got a clear, unbiased view of us. They would not think us worth the trouble of raising.

Dorothy Dix

Nevertheless, this ability of every mother to see a future president of the United States or the wife of a millionaire in her common-place little babies has its tragic as well as its comic and sentimental aspects. For it raises great expectations that can never be realized. It fills the world with embittered men and women who have failed to achieve either happiness or success because they were always reaching for the stars, while a street lamp was their limit.

All of us know parents whose sole topic of conversation is the wonderful brilliance of their children. John is a mathematical shark who someday will be a great engineer. Mary has a Metropolitan voice. Tom is a born orator who will be a spellbinder when he goes into politics. Sally is such a beauty that people turn to look at her on the street. And we marvel that even fatuous fathers and mothers can see these shining qualities in their dull and homely offspring. If the matter ended in parents getting a kick out of believing that they had begotten statesmen and trust magnates and Miss Amerias we might smile at their delusion and think it a compensation for all the work and trouble of rearing a family. But that isn't the end. It ends in the pitiful sacrifice of both parents and children to an illusion of grandeur.

Perhaps the chief harm that this glorification of a child does is to inflate its ego and make it esteem itself superior to every one else. Home flattery is the most potent brew that ever was concocted, and the boy and girl who have been drugged on that from their infancy up never wake up enough to see themselves as they really are and to estimate their real abilities.

* * *

Thus we have always with us the "also rans," who never get anywhere because they are never willing to go the pace for which they are gaited by nature. They think they are Derby winners when they are only dray horses. They are always out of work because they expect to start out as bank presidents. They are old maids because they expected to make brilliant marriages and no Fairy Prince came down their alley. Or they are peevish, fretful, discontented wives who look down on their husbands and think they condescended to marry the poor dubs who support them. The unappreciated geniuses, the failures who have never found any job to fit their talents, the women who are always wailing about not being understood, are virtually all the result of having been taught to think more highly of themselves than they should when they were children.

* * *

One of the common sights that is enough to wring tears from a heart of stone is the spectacle of parents who are literally killing themselves to send children to college who are not college material, who have no thirst for knowledge, who don't even like to read and whose sole object in going to college is to have a good time.

* * *

It would seem that any father and mother would know that if Johnny and Mary wouldn't study in grammar and high school they won't study in college, but they don't. They are so obsessed by the idea that their children are literally geniuses that they cut down on the food bill at home and wear their old clothes and do without the medical attention they need to spend thousands of dollars on a boy and girl who come back home with nothing but a college yell and a supercilious attitude toward their parents.

* * *

What a pity that instead of overvaluing their children and bringing them up to have an exaggerated idea of their abilities parents do not try to see their children just as they are and so try to fit them for work they can do instead of making them aspire to some job that is beyond their powers to accomplish! There is nothing sadder than a wrecked ambition.

Problems of an 18-year-old Wife

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am just 18 years old, and have been married two months and a half. After I married I kept on with my job and my husband made a small salary, so together I thought we would get along nicely. We have a car, not paid for, so when the note was due I gave my husband money to pay it, but he didn't pay it, he gambled it away. I had a little savings and he took that money also and gambled that away. He has never given me any money since we were married. And he has lied to me about everything. Now he lost his job and gone on the road and he wants me to go with him. I have a dear old mother whom I hate to leave, so I don't know whether I should leave my job and go with him or stay with Mother. What shall I do?

* * *

Answer:

If you desire to keep on eating you had better stay with your mother and hang on to your job, for you will have nothing to look forward to but starvation if you go with your husband.

* * *

Surely, even if you are only 18 years old, you must have enough sense to know that a man who would steal from his own wife is not to be trusted and that a bridegroom who does nothing to support his wife but expects her to support him is a poor dependence for a husband.

One Is Beloved

BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

BROTHER AND SISTER

Chapter One

Sue Davenport came into the big livingroom with her own peculiarly light-footed step. She was flushed and tingling from the crisp October air. Her dark eyes which had a trick at times of seeming far too large for her small oval face, sparkled at the sight of the first wood fire of the season.

"Bless Maggie's heart!" she murmured, coming to rest one small brogued foot on the old brass railing which had enclosed the fireplace in her mother's girlhood home.

She stood there for some time, smiling to herself in conscious enjoyment of well being. It was good to have walked for miles among the rustling leaves along the river bank until the rapidly falling dusk drove her homeward. It was good to come into this spacious room whose every furnishing had been familiar to her since her babyhood, though now it occupied a comfortable apartment instead of the house where she and her brother Allen had been born. It was good—it was best of all! to be twenty-four and not unattractive, and the youthful mistress of this new home!

"Want I should turn on the lights, Miss Sue?" Maggie asked entering quietly. "Most time to set the table for dinner."

Sue roused herself with a little laugh. "I suppose it is! And I must have a bath and change before then." She came close to the old woman. "I smell of woodsmoke and dusty leaves and walnuts. They're thick under the big tree on Wyeth-Hill!"

"Miss Sue, you haven't been up there alone again—and this late in the day besides? How many times do I have to tell you 'tain't safe up there?—Jesse James used to hide in Dug Cut—"

The girl's laugh rang out again and she seized the old servant in her arms and hugged her.

"Maggie darlin,' they 'laid Jesse James in his grave' before I was born—before you were born, if it comes to that! It was grand up there, watching the lights come on in the city, the planes circling down to the airfield. And—" she forestalled the automatic protest which she saw on the other's lips—"I was not alone! Barbara was with me."

Maggie sniffed, unmollified.

"Miss Bar'ra'd be a heap of help if a tramp should creep outen those woods." Suddenly the implication of her young mistress' first speech dawned on her. "Sue Davenport! There ain't no walnut trees whatever right on the hill! You must have went right down into the woods to find them nuts. Honestly, honestly, Miss Sue! You ain't no more fit than a baby to be out after sunset. I'm going to speak to Mr. Allen—"

Sue laughed a trifle ruefully. It was perfectly true that even yet the woods along the river bluffs occasionally harbored undesirable characters. She deflected the outraged Maggie's rage with the adroitness of experience.

"Look at my hands, Mag dear! Wouldn't you know I'd take off my gloves and get all stained up the very day before Barbara's party? Do you know any way to get this horrible brown off?"

"Pumice stone, Miss Sue; that is, if you haven't used soap on 'em yet!" She examined the small palms anxiously. "Come straight into the bathroom with me! Body'd think you was only four!"

Easy On The Eyes

An hour later Sue presented herself to Allen, contentedly reading his paper before the fire. Her dark cap of curls lay smooth and shining, she had echanged her dusty woolen suit for a silky brown velvet gown with a wide creamy collar, she smelled pleasantly of fine soap, powder and a hint of her own special perfume. Her brother eyed her appreciatively.

"Getting easy to look at, Sue!"

"Getting! You know I'm a raving beauty, darling!" she admitted modestly. He lowered his paper with a hint of seriousness in his manner.

"No, but really, Sue, you aren't bad at all! I used to think you were the world's ugliest child, with that stretchy red mouth of yours, your little brown face and those wild curls. What have you done to yourself, anyway? Bleached your skin, or something?"

She shook her head, shamelessly admiring herself in the long narrow mirror above the mantelpiece.

"It's not really white yet, just sort of creamy; and it looks better a night than it does in the daytime. But considering the fact that Mother used to absolutely cry over me when I was dressed for parties, the change is most gratifying, most gratifying indeed!" She lowered her voice pompously over the last phrase, imitating the lawyer who had been her joint guardian with Allen after their father's death.

Presently they were at the table, devouring with healthy young appetites Maggie's delicious dinner. Allen put forward a finger to the silver bowl of violets, long-stemmed purple beauties with an expensive look.

"The faithful Kettle?"

She shrugged. "Yes. I must be losing my technique. I simply can't discourage him. Last night I deliberately picked a quarrel with him; and this morning he sent these 'to apologize for my unmannerly words which, I assure you, astonished me far more than they can have done you.' Isn't he an idiot, Allen?"

"He's a darned successful lawyer, my dear young woman. You might go farther and fare worse, you know."

Sue laughed outright. "Sue Kettle! It sounds like a Salvation Army lass! I can just hear Forest Webb toasting the engagement. 'Here's to Sue and James Kettle, and all the little pots and pans!'"

To her surprise Allen remarked meditatively: "I think I wouldn't let a babbling fool like Forest influence me in the choice of a husband, my dear!"

The goblet she was lifting to her lips was restored to its coaster with a tiny thump.

"Allen Davenport! Do I hear you calling your best friend a fool, and a babbling one at that?"

He selected a crisp bit of celery before he spoke. "You do, my lamb. He is a babbling fool—that's partly why we both love him, isn't it? His nonsense is sort of restful. But if you're going to take it seriously—let it count against Jim Kettle—"

'An Old Maid?'

She pushed back her plate, rested a rounded elbow on the table and propped her chin in her hand.

"For the love of Mike, Buddy! What's got you all excited over Jim Kettle? He's been under foot more or less for the past two years, and you never took him seriously before." She blinked suddenly. "Trying to get rid of me, Allen?"

"Now it's you who are the fool, Sis. It would take more than a whole storeful of Kettles to come

Joan Crawford, on a visit to New York, has her first date with her "good friend" and ex-husband Franchot Tone. Neither would answer questions about a possible reconciliation.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—Consider the contrasting box office records of two fine screen tragedies, "Dark Victory" and "We Are Not Alone." Why is the first a smash hit and the second a financial disappointment?

Fidler

Ask that question in Hollywood and you'll be swamped by a flood of vague generalities. No one—not even the smartest and most experienced showman of the lot—can give you detailed, proven facts. Despite the millions invested each year in the hope of pleasing the public, no one has ever attempted to ascertain—via scientific, painstaking research—exactly what audiences like on the screen.

Hollywood ought to find out more about public preferences. It would be a tedious, but certainly not an impossible, task to analyze fan tastes. Such researchers as Dr. Gallup, of the Institute of Public Opinion, have worked out formulae which produce results of uncanny accuracy. I'm sure producers would learn a lot if they would get together with Dr. Gallup—and ask the public flatly what it would like.

Such an undertaking could only result in a greater percentage of entertaining pictures. The fact that it would fatten studio coffers is of secondary interest to me. I'm greedy for the laughs, thrills and emotional jolts that only good movies can supply. And, by the same token, I'm woefully tired of having my tastes flouted week after week, simply because Hollywood producers are too inert to find out exactly what I like.

IDOL CHATTER: Ginger Rogers would probably have to think twice if the bell-hop paged "Mrs. Lewis Ayres." In-a-word description of Edgar Bergen: voice-atile. No matter how hard you try, it's impossible to write "Better Acting" without using B-e-t-t-e as a starter. Peas-in-a-pod: Nelson Eddy and Dick Foran. Many a screen glamour boy would gladly trade his widow's peak for C. B. De Mille's perfect speaking voice. Sure-thing bets: Vera Vague to win any talk-athon. I always get a chuckle from Sonja Henie's invariable greeting: "What do you hear from the mob?" Jan Peerce claims that our glamour gals keep age a secret until it begins to tell on them.

ODD-FORMATION: Don't worry about the heroine's pretty fingers being burned when she carries a steaming dish—the effect is achieved with dry ice. . . Add miniature train addicts: John Carradine. . . . John Garfield's wife, who still live in New York, is his business manager. His pay checks are sent to her; she sends his weekly allowance by return mail. . . Did you know that character-actor Charles Trowbridge once operated a mammoth sugar plantation in Hawaii? . . "Irene" is the 14th consecutive picture made by the director-star team of Herbert Wilcox and Anna Neagle. . . .

One of the best Xmas gags in many a year belatedly comes to my attention. Max Factor, the cosmetician, sent Charlie McCarthy a beautiful morocco make-up kit. It contained a small plane, a wood rasp and a dozen pieces of sandpaper!

Fish-Game Group Outlines Winter Feeding Program

Clintonville Association Directors Meet at Martin Falk Home

Clintonville — Plans for their annual winter pheasant feeding program were made at the January meeting of directors of the Clintonville Fish and Game Protective association Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Falk on W. Third street. For the last four or five years the club has maintained about thirty feeding stations within a radius of ten miles around Clintonville. The feeders are placed in natural shelters and are replenished with feed and grit about once a week in bad weather and less often in good weather when the birds can find plenty of feed.

The conservationists are planning this year to construct a new type of feeder to replace the ones used heretofore. Those appointed to the pheasant feeding committee are: S. A. LaViolette, chairman; George Graff, Martin Falk, George Stevens, Jay Weatherwax, Roy Peterson, George Spiegel, T. A. Patterson, Herman Schultz, and Victor Seyler, the latter of Marion. For the last several summers the Clintonville fish and game club has reared hundreds of pheasants which are released in the fall in the woods of the surrounding community. In order to save these from starvation during the severe winter weather, the winter feeding program was started.

The fish and game club is also making arrangements for an old-time and hard-time dance at the Clintonville armory, the tentative date being set for Saturday evening, Feb. 3.

The monthly business meeting was preceded by a covered-dish supper for the officers and their wives, there being twenty persons present. Later in the evening, schafskopf was played, prizes going to Jay Weatherwax and Mrs. George Graff, first; Roy Peterson and Mrs. George Spiegel, second.

The Kratz brothers, formerly of Waupaca, established the Service Lumber company in this city in 1928 and have owned and operated the business since that time. The Kratz families plan to continue their residence in Clintonville.

Mrs. Frank Gehrke was hostess to the Economy club Wednesday afternoon at her home on Fifteenth street. Games were played, after which a luncheon was served. The club has twelve members.

Sentiment for Third Term Increased Since War, but Majority Still Is Opposed

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—Although Franklin D. Roosevelt's popularity as President continues about as great today as in the election year of 1936, evidence that the idea of a Roosevelt third term has not been accepted by a majority of voters is indicated in a national American Institute of Public Opinion survey.

Dr. Gallup

For many months the Institute, by means of repeated cross-section studies, has kept two separate and distinct indices of public sentiment regarding the President. One is the month-by-month popularity of Mr. Roosevelt in his role as Chief Executive, this index being determined by responses to the question: "In general, do you approve or disapprove today of Roosevelt as President?"

The other is an index of the number of voters who are for or against the principle of a Roosevelt third term, as measured by responses to the question: "If President Roosevelt runs for a third term will you vote for him?"

Between the two indices there is generally a difference in result of from 15 to 20 percentage points, for the reason that not all of the voters who approve of the President at this stage of his second term say they would be willing to vote for him for a third term.

In the most recent third term survey, completed this week, 46 per cent of voters questioned said they would vote for Roosevelt if he ran again. This is substantially smaller than the number who approve of him as President today, as the following comparison shows:

"In general, do you approve or disapprove today of Roosevelt as President?"

(December)

Approve	63.5%
Disapprove	36.5

"If President Roosevelt runs for a third term will you vote for him?"

Yes	46%
No	54

The trend of sentiment in the last few months, however, has been in a direction decidedly favorable to a third term. Since the beginning of the European war crisis last summer there has been a sharp increase in the number of voters in Institute surveys who say they would vote for Roosevelt for another term.

	Would Vote For 3d Term	Would Vote Against
May	33%	67%
Aug.	40	60
Oct.	43	57
Today	46	54

These figures do not constitute any sort of forecast of what would happen if President Roosevelt actually did run for a third term; they are merely a measurement of sentiment on the general third term principle at this particular time. The course of events, at home and abroad, may profoundly influence sentiment one way or the other before the President finally announces his decision regarding 1940.

Democrats Favor Third Term

An overwhelming proportion of Democratic voters interviewed in the poll said they would vote for a Roosevelt third term.

Republicans, however, are even more intense in opposing a Roosevelt third term than Democrats are in favoring it. Thus, while the Democrats are about 8 to 2 for a third term, Republicans are more than 9 to 1 against it. The combination of Republicans plus the minority of anti-third term Democrats is enough to tip the balance of national sentiment against the third term at this time.

	Would Vote For 3d Term	Would Vote Against
Democrats	79%	21%
Republicans	7	93

Equity Town Mutual Paid 59 Losses; Has Issued 1,842 Policies

Forest Junction—Members of the Equity Town Mutual Insurance company, including policy holders from Brown, Calumet, Manitowoc and Outagamie counties, had their twenty-eighth annual meeting in the town hall here Thursday morning. William Vollmer, Hilbert, is president of the company and H. C. Ullrich, Brillion, is its secretary-treasurer.

The company had 1,842 policies in force at the close of 1939 representing a risk of $11,318,510, an increase of 6 policies and $176,794 risk over a year ago. Fifty-nine losses paid in 1939 included five major fires, two in the town of Holland, and one each in the towns of Woodville, Center and Grand Chute, and totalled $20,733.04. Assessments paid during the year amounted to $27,342.06, according to the twenty-eighth annual statement.

Business matters of the session centered around minor changes in loss adjustment and other procedure and considerable time was devoted to a discussion of inequalities originating from present systems of fire protection in rural communities. The annual election resulted in no change on the board of directors, which, in addition to the president and secretary-treasurer, includes John Zimmermann, John Seybold, H. L. Bastian and Albert Sievert.

Propose Project To Modernize All Vital Statistics

State Health Board Offers WPA Help to Complete Records

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Counties and municipalities are being offered an opportunity by the state board of health to modernize and complete their vital statistics files and indexes without cost to themselves.

Approval has been obtained, it was announced, of an $800,000 state-wide WPA project for the re-indexing of vital statistics records in state, county and municipal offices in order to furnish all three branches of government with a complete and up to date accounting of all of the millions of birth and death records in Wisconsin.

Frank Hall of Madison will be supervisor of the project, under the direction of Francis Kester, chief of the state board of health's bureau of vital statistics. Kester said today he is anxious to obtain co-operation in sponsoring local projects from all municipalities and counties, so that the final index will be a complete one.

Law Provisions

"The Wisconsin laws provide that each vital statistics record shall be filed in local, county and state offices," he explained. The indexes are found to be incomplete or inaccurate in the bureau of vital statistics at the capitol and in many of the local and county offices. There are also a number of records filed in one or two, but not all three of these places. It is felt that a supplementary index showing where such records are on file and may be obtained if necessary, will serve all practical purposes."

Some idea of the extent of the job is shown in the fact that the state office alone has more than 5,500,000 vital statistics records, collected since the bureau was established a little more than 30 years ago. It is expected that the project may last several years and employ as many as 800 persons throughout the state.

Kester pointed out that the increases in social security legislation in recent years make the vital statistics record steadily more valuable and in demand. During 10 months of 1939, he reported, the state office had requests for information from about 37,000 records, and it is likely that a similar number of queries were received by local and county registrars.

Haase Is Reelected President of Credit Union at Kimberly

Kimberly — Raymond Haase was reelected president of the Kimberly Credit union at the clubhouse Wednesday evening. Oscar Ehlke was named vice president, succeeding A. Fulcer. Other officers reelected were: Edward Skotzhe, secretary; Cornelius Crowe, treasurer and Harold Hoolihan, assistant treasurer.

Alex Malcolm, Sr., was elected to the board of directors, succeeding Peter Ruys. Other directors reelected were Matt Verkuillen, Leonard Zeegers, Cornelius Crowe and Otto Hannemann. Al Garenkrug, treasurer of the Lakeview Mill Credit union, Neenah, gave a short talk. Eighty-five members attended the meeting. After the business session, cards were played and refreshments were served.

F. J. Leonard, Appleton, was the principal speaker at the Lions club meeting at the clubhouse Thursday evening. A 6:30 dinner was served, followed by a business meeting. Mr. Leonard talked on "Technocracy."

Twelve scouts of the junior group have been transferred to the senior group, which make a total of 33 in the seniors. They are under the leadership of Mrs. Henry Patch.

Mrs. Arthur De Wildt underwent a major operation Thursday morning at St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton.

COED BOTTLE SYMPHONY TO ENTERTAIN AT CHARTER DAY DINNER

When you blow across the neck of an empty bottle, you get a sound. When you blow across the neck of a half-filled bottle, you get a different sound. And so on, with quarter-filled bottles, etc.

Hawkins Again Is Head of Library

Mrs. Ray Miller Continues as Librarian At Seymour

Seymour — The regular meeting of the public library board was held Wednesday evening at the library. The annual statistical report was read by Mrs. Ray Miller, librarian. It showed that the library has 4,364 volumes on the shelves. This is 68 more than last year after deducting 65 volumes that were lost and worn out during the year. Two hundred and seven new books were added. At the close of the year there were 656 borrowers registered, 212 of these are from the rural districts. During the year 8,617 volumes were lent out, an increase of 1,523 over last year.

Elections of officers was held and the following were chosen for another year: E. T. Hawkins, president; James Vietch, vice president; Mrs. Miller, secretary; Frank Longrie, treasurer. The book committee will include Miss Dorothea Holz, Mrs. James Sherman and Mrs. William Beck. The problem of the delinquent borrower was discussed. These borrowers paid $43.39 to the library during the past year through fines, but almost $25 is yet on the books as the amount still to be paid by borrowers who failed to get their books back to the library on time. The fines are collected not to make money for the library but to keep the most read books in better circulation.

The two banks of Seymour, the First National and State bank will operate under a change of banking hours, beginning Monday, Jan. 15, when they will open at 9 o'clock instead of 8 o'clock. This change is to comply with the new 42-hour week provision of the federal wage and hour act.

COOPERATIVE MEETING

Representatives of cooperatives in district No. 9 of Midland Cooperative were scheduled to open a meeting at 1:30 this afternoon in the Conway hotel. Routine business matters were up for discussion.

between us — you ought to know that!"

"Well—" she assented, mollified. Presently she went back to the subject. "You can't resist a dig at his name yourself! 'A storeful of Kettles,' you said! I see myself marrying a man with such a name! For that matter," she went on, busy now with her salad, "I see myself marrying James if his name was Montague Montmorency! He's a pill," she said with finality.

"You don't—well—care for him at all, Sue?"

She frowned with genuine annoyance. "I believe you are trying to marry me off, Bud! Why in heaven's name should I, if this thing called love should descend on me out of a clear sky, select James Kettle as its object when the town is practically running over with eligible and charming young men? James is a million years older than I am—eleven, at least. He—"

Allen interrupted her. "Honestly, Sue, haven't you ever been in love? Haven't you ever wanted to have your own home, order meals for your man, put your hand in his and go . . . wherever he wanted you to?" A flush rose under his dark skin, but he kept on steadily. "I thought all girls had crushes! I know you're always telling me about Barbara's. You're twenty-four, Sue dear; older than Mother was when she married Dad. Aren't you—haven't you—"

Really alarmed, she answered almost in a whisper. "Do—do you want me to, Allen? Are you afraid I'll hang around your neck, a—an old maid?"

He laughed sheepishly. "No, idiot! I've made a mess of this, as usual. It was just that it suddenly came over me tonight—when I looked up and saw you looking so gay and pretty in your new frock—that you have no one but me to advise you on such things. And Kettle is a rich man and a smart man; better than that, he's a good guy, too. I didn't want any silly puns on his name to prejudice you against him.

"That's all, infant!" he went on more lightly. "Just one of my attacks of fraternal conscience. Forget it!" He eyed the dessert Maggie put before him with interest. "The first pumpkin pie, eh? Plenty of cinnamon on it, Mag?"

Later when the two had settled down for one of their rare evenings at home, Sue curled with her book in a corner of the big davenport, Allen smoking his beloved pipe over his magazine, the girl referred again to James Kettle.

"You gave me a bad few minutes at dinner, Buddy, did you realize it? I truly thought you were trying to break something to me." She let her book slide off her lap as she leaned toward him earnestly. "I suppose—I know—I know! that you'll marry some day. Of course I do—I want you to marry; but not just now, Allen, not for another year or so. You're only thirty; that's young for men in these days, isn't it? Why, you've only been out of college five years!"

He chuckled. "You make me sound positively callow! Must I remind you that I emerged with my doctor's degree in three branches of engineering? That I'm a junior member of a somewhat important firm? And that," he added with a curious sort of deliberation, "Forest Webb and I are about the only bachelors left in our particular set?" He went on swiftly before she could answer: "It's your life we're talking about Sue, not mine. It came to me all of a sudden tonight—as I said—that it's queer you haven't been in and out of love a dozen times. I wonder," he went on anxiously, "if it's because you know too many men? If your life wasn't all cluttered up with my friends—if you were really hard up for fellows to take you out, dance with you, send you flowers—"

Her low laughter halted him momentarily, but he began again, his kind eyes fixed on her worriedly, his affectionate voice full of brotherly concern.

Continued tomorrow.

Lawrence Beaten In Thriller, 32-30

Ripon Takes Its Fourth Straight Midwest Victory

VIKES WORK HARD

Both Teams Get 10 Field Goals; Free Throws Tell Story

BY GORDON McINTYRE

IF those Lawrence college cagers had just a little more polish, just a bit more natural ability—But they haven't and that's why the Ripon college Redmen scored their fourth straight victory of the current Midwest conference campaign here last night at Alexander gymnasium. The score was 32 and 30 and it was Lawrence's fourth defeat in five Midwest starts.

Cape

You can always expect a battle when the Vikings and Redmen meet and last night's contest only proved the point. From the opening whistle, the teams tore at each other and raced up and down the floor as the large crowd whipped itself into a frenzy. A fellow with a weak heart had no business being present; reserved gentlemen and sedate ladies tossed it all aside and gave vent to their feelings with vehemence and gusto.

Ripon Smooth

There was no doubt about which team was the smoother, which had the more elusive performers. It was Ripon. But neither was their any doubt about which team was putting up the battle, which team was playing to the utmost of its ability. It was Lawrence.

Ripon moved the ball around outside the Lawrence defense in a manner that befuddled the spectators who watched at long range and made it most difficult for Viking players who were trying at short range to keep track on their men. A single misstep or a shift off balance was all the Crimson needed to make a drive for the hoop.

Lawrence didn't handle the ball as smoothly, nor did it have the drive of Ripon but it got there just the same as the ten field goals it scored attest. Ripon also counted ten field goals. Lawrence counted its baskets from farther out on the floor with Wallie Cape's hook shots and Don Frederickson's push shots being sensational maneuvers. There were several exceptionally well executed drives under the hoop that brought results but they were too few.

Because the game was decided on the free throw mark—12 for Ripon to 10 for Lawrence—it's right to say that Lawrence dropped the verdict because of a little too much enthusiasm in its following up under the Ripon goal. Several of the fouls came when Vikings did the stunt for which the man on the trapeze is familiar—fly through the air—and came down on some Redman's neck.

Cape Shows Well

Cape and Frederickson, the forwards, were the high scorers for Lawrence. Cape counted three baskets, two of them his sensational hook shots, early in the game. Thereafter he seemed to lose his shooting eye but perhaps it was because he concentrated on defensive play for much of the remainder of the game. He was a mighty big help on defense for his speed enabled him to break up many Ripon passes. Frederickson got eight points on four goals, three in the first half. He was well watched but also a little hesitant about driving in for shots.

Ripon's high scorer was Milan Bloecher with four goals and five free throws. He also was the spark that kept the Crimson in the game and probably was the best man on the floor. Three fouls slowed him shortly after the second half started but he went the route. Jim Rember got three goals, two followups and one from out on the floor.

Wallie Cape hooked a basket for Lawrence as the game opened but Ripon led 3 to 2 when Larson grabbed a pass from Kremar and counted. Cape hooked another shot and then Fredrickson counted from the side of the court. The score was 6 to 5 with Ripon having three free throws and a goal.

Each team added a free throw and then Rember put Ripon ahead with a followup shot. Frederickson drove in and pushed in a goal, and Lawrence led 9 to 8. Here Lawrence weakened momentarily and Bloecher grabbed a tip off a held ball and scored. Williams got a gift shot and Kremar scored a goal to give Ripon a 13 to 9 lead.

Frederickson scored from the free throw circle for Lawrence but Bloecher scored and was fouled by Buesing and added the extra point to give Ripon a 16 to 11 margin. Cape got two free throws for Lawrence but a free throw and Bloecher's followup shot gave Ripon a 19 to 13 margin. Lingle got a free throw and Smith drove in under the hoop to count and make the score 19 to 16 for Ripon as the half ended.

The crowd, sensing a wild struggle in the second half, gave the teams a frenzied ovation as the final period started. Five free throws against two for Ripon enabled Lawrence to tie the count at 21-all shortly after play was resumed. Ripon wasn't working as smoothly as during the first half but Lawrence also was a trifle ragged as the pace began to tell.

A single basket by Larson and two by Rember shattered Lawrence's hopes of getting in front and gave Ripon a 27 to 21 margin. Lawrence suddenly sprang to life and Cape got a basket and a free throw on the same play to bring Lawrence back and when Masterson suddenly lumbered under the hoop and took a pass from Cape and scored, Ripon's lead was only 27 to 26. There then was 7½ minutes of play remaining.

Two free throws helped the Ripon cause and then Bloecher hit from out near the free throw circle. Lawrence came back with a basket by Frederickson with Cape assisting and then Lingle canned a long shot to make the score 31 to 30. Ripon called for a breathing spell and 3 minutes of play remained. The Crimson managed to control the ball most of the time and Lawrence turned in two fouls in its efforts to break up the passing. They netted Ripon a single point and a 32 to 30 win.

Who Says Shaughnessy Grid System Doesn't Work?

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)— If Dr. John Bain Sutherland will tell us where he is going to coach this fall, we'll tell him where he can get a good halfback. . . Fair enough, isn't it? . . . Big Ten grid officials have promised each other not to relay any mode gossip from camp to camp or discuss plays, et cet with newspaper men. . . Who says the Shaughnessy system doesn't work? You lose your ball games and get a five-year contract. . . Good luck to Clark Shaughnessy at Stanford and to good old Jess Neely at Rice.

Iron Men Dept.

The Goose Creek (Tex.) basketeers entered a schoolboy tournament at 11 a. m. one day and eight hours later had four wins and the title to their credit. . . . Marlin Buckles (six foot, three) rang the bell for 60 points in the marathon.

If Loyola (New Orleans) goes back into football, all Dixie Howell has to do to become head coach is buy or borrow a fountain pen. . . In the meantime, the old Alabama star who put his Tempe (Ariz.) Teachers in the Sun Bowl, is doing a little flirting on the side with Howard college at Birmingham.

Today's Guest Star

Morgan Blake, Atlanta Journal: "England has put out a motion picture called 'The Lion Has Wings,' but Bill Henry of the Los Angeles Times thinks it unlikely Russia will turn out one called 'The Bear Has Finns.'"

Leo Savold, the mid-western heavy, made a hit here. . . He's a rugged, two-fisted puncher and you may see him mingling with Conn soon. . . Joe M'Carthy is due this weekend for a confab over Yankee salaries. . . Jack Kearns is guaranteeing Bob Pastor ten grand to fight Red Burman in Detroit.

Both Winners

In baseball it's the Shaughnessy play-offs. . . In football it's the Shaughnessy pay-off.

Valley Sports won two games from Zwicker Knitting Mills to retain their league lead. J. Bauhs collected two games of 192 and a 546 series to pace the winners while H Starck counted 475 for the losing quint.

Lawrence Yearlings Score 38-29 Victory

Lawrence college freshman basketball squad scored a 38 to 29 victory over Ripon freshmen in a preliminary game to the Lawrence-Ripon varsity contest last night. The Lawrence yearlings held only a 17 to 15 advantage at the half, but as the second half opened they clicked like veterans and soon had a big margin.

Crossett, with seven points, and Ewers, with eight, led the Vike yearlings. Dawson had eight and Crocker seven for Ripon.

Shiocton '5' Seeks Win Tonight for Harold Conradt

Shiocton — When Shiocton High school basketball team goes up against Winneconne tonight here in an important Western division Little Nine game, it'll be seeking a win for a reason that's bigger than conference standings.

Harold Conradt, veteran guard on the Shiocton squad, is a sick lad with pneumonia and missing a lot of games he'd like to take part in. So tonight the Shiocton squad is going out to win for Harold.

Conradt was taken sick last week a day before the Hortonville game and his mates didn't do so well. Tonight they'll redeem themselves.

Piney Woods Five Easy for Kimberly; Score Is 58 to 33

Papermakers Will Take Northern Trip in League Play This Week

KIMBERLY—The Kimberly A. A. cagers defeated Piney Woods colored cagers Thursday evening at the clubhouse by a score of 58 to 33. The Papermakers led throughout the game by a big margin but the large score is no indication of the splendid ball played by the visitors. They were fast and shifty.

Smoky Joe Saunders crippled colored star, made his appearance in the game and was given a splendid ovation by the fans. Joe also did a tap dancing number during the halftime rest.

Holmes drew first blood by dropping in a neat shot from the free throw marker. E. Vander Velden and Bowman each countered with a bucket and Van Dyke made good on two charities. Six more points was added to the Papermakers' cause when Hokfins, Bowman and Van Dyke found the range. E. Gossens and Hofkins sank charities before Woodsen found the net and Payne dropped in a gift. Gossens ended the scoring at quarter time with a bucket giving Kimberly 14 points to the visitors' 7.

The second quarter was fast and furious with the Papermakers showing a fast breaking game that brought 13 points to the Piney's 8. The visitors found it difficult to get set for shots and were hurried. The half ended 27 to 15 in the A. A.'s favor.

Beginning the second half, Gossens hit the net twice with Bowman and Van Dyke each adding a bucket and the parade of points was on. The quarter ended 31 to 22.

The last period was more damaging to the visitors with Kimberly scoring at will. The Kimberly team now is in old time form showing teamwork which was not quite up to par in the earlier part of the season. It leaves on a Northern trip this weekend for league competition.

The Kimberly Merchants were defeated by the Kaukauna Merchants, 25 to 24, in a preliminary game.

Shoot 67's Despite Rain And Mud: Guldahl Gets a Big 74

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—Two players who would be described in horse racing circles as "superior mudders" set the pace today as a reduced field of 128 teed off in the the second round of the $5,000 72-hole Oakland gold tournament.

Fancy 67's, three under par, executed under such trying circumstances as rain, some wind and plenty of standing water, put Craig Wood, blond professional from Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Wilford Wehrle, amateur from Racine, Wis., in the forefront.

Wood had a 35-32, Wehrle 32-35.

Trailing the leaders by a stroke were Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., youngster, and Jim Demaret, a crack shot from Houston, Texas. They had 68's.

The most prominent casualty of the opener was the two-time former United States open champion, Ralph Guldahl. He trailed his colleagues with a 74.

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Fond du Lac at Green Bay West.
Green Bay East at Manitowoc.
Sheboygan Central at Oshkosh.
Appleton at Sheboygan North.

Appleton High school basketball team is expected to score its second Fox River Valley conference win this evening when it invades Sheboygan North court. Both the varsity and junior varsity teams will be in action.

Coach Myrlon Seims plans to use the same varsity starting squad which did rather well against Oshkosh last week. Bill Burton will be at center, Stew Cooper and Bob Lathrop at the forwards, and Ben Blacher and Chuck Klefoth at the guards.

If the Terrors only get it into their heads to pass the ball around outside the enemy defense and then grab an opportunity to break under the hoop, they'll click. Their tendency to hold onto the ball is their biggest weakness.

Both North and Appleton have won one game and dropped three in conference play.

Appleton's reserve squad will be seeking to remain one of the junior varsity leaders. It is tied with Manitowoc and Sheboygan Central for first place in the JV circuit.

The conference's feature game tonight will have Sheboygan Central at Oshkosh with the loser destined to be ousted from first place and the undefeated class. Fond du Lac, the other undefeated leader, is at Green Bay West. Green Bay East goes to Manitowoc for the other league game.

50 ENTER SKI MEET

Pro Gridders Eat Too Well; Promoter Wants Game Over

BY ROBERT MYERS

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Fancy taking a few guests such as Turk Edwards, Ki Aldrich, Ernie Smith and some 50 other behemoths of the gridiron to dinner for three solid weeks and you have the reason for a promoter's nightmare.

In the present instance, the grid giants are members of the rival Green Bay Packer and National league all-star teams, the harassed promoter is Tom Gallery and the game is the once-postponed "pro-bowl" clash.

"It won't be postponed again, though," declared Gallery. "Rain or shine, it will go on Sunday at Gilmore Stadium.

"My, my," he added, "how those young men can eat!"

The two aggregations reported in Los Angeles Dec. 23. They've been hard at it since, but most of their work has been at the dinner table.

Time and again rain has forced them to abandon outdoor practice, but the indoor drills haven't interfered with their respective appetites. The two squads look very healthy.

"I kinda like your unusual weather," crawled Davey O'Brien, the ex-Texas Christian university passing star. Davey, incidentally, is the smallest man of the lot, but he seems to hold his own in such eating company as Bruiser Kinard and Pug Manders. He adheres closely to the old rule of never passing on fourth down; in fact, he won't pass until after the first down.

"Four minutes after we found we couldn't play the game last Sunday I walked into the dining room and there was Davey, parked behind the biggest T-bone I ever saw," Gallery observed. "He's a speedy boy, that Davey."

"So are the rest," he went on. "If they tear into each other as they do to those potaties, it will be a ball game."

Chuter A.A. Plays Hilbert Tonight

Show at St. John Gym; Johnny Rigney of Chi Sox With Invaders

Little Chute—The local A. A. cagers are set to stop Hilbert which clashes with the Dutchmen at St. John gym tonight in what promises to be a bitterly fought contest. The visitors hold the edge on the locals as result of a 32 to 26 win at Hilbert earlier in the season.

The highlight of the evening's program will be appearance of Johnny Rigney, Chicago White Sox moundsman, who won 15 games last year to place him among the leading twirlers of the country. One of his past performances was a 13-inning duel with Bob Feller. In another game he allowed Detroit three hits and against St. Louis he pitched a 2-hitter.

He will be interviewed between halves by Gordon Mc Intyre, sports editor of the Appleton Post-Crescent. They will be heard over a loud speaker system. Autographs will be given by Rigney to fans.

The game itself will be a whiz with players like Baldock, Schroven, Nell and Schroeder handling the ball on offense, while Fox, a team in himself, will be paired in the back court with Peterson or Mullendore.

The locals will show Don Peeters, Joev Verstegen, Bernie Bongers, Lefty Wildenberg or Moose Van Dyke in the front line with Duce Weyenberg, Ernie Verstegen or Mike Hammen forming the defense.

The preliminary will show Little Chute Theaters clashing with the Kimberly Merchants at 7:15 while the main event will open at 8:15.

Sunday afternoon the Brillion City team will clash with the A. A. at St. John gym at 3 o'clock. Little Chute Theaters will play the preliminary at 2 p. m against Kaukauna.

Sheboygan Is Winner Over Detroit Pro '5'

Sheboygan—(AP)— Sheboygan defeated Detroit 41 to 33 last night in a "crucial" game between the Western and Eastern division leaders of the National Professional basketball league.

The fine floor play of Otto Kolar, who made nine points, and Rube Lauterschlager's six field goals were important factors in the Redskins' victory.

Sheboygan held period leads of 13-9, 24-17 and 34-25. Slim Wintermute, former University of Oregon center, was high for Detroit with 10 points.

Chuter Quintets Win at Marinette

St. John Cops 24-12 and A.A. Team Figures in 47-30 Victory

Little Chute—St. John high cagers defeated Lourdes high school cagers at Marinette Wednesday evening, 24 to 12.

Jimmy Koehn returned to the Dutchmen lineup and scored six field goals and a gift shot to pace the winners while Connie Vanden Heuvel followed with a pair of field goals and three charity shots.

The local defense clicked on the large court and the Northern team was stopped with the exception of a few long counters.

The first period had the Chuters in the lead 5 to 4 with a 15 to 5 lead at halftime. The third period showed the score at 18 to 8.

The other half of the twin bill had the local A. A. score a 47 to 30 win over the Marinette city team.

Joey Verstegen topped the winners with six field goals with the rest of the squad dividing the remaining points.

OSHKOSH PEDS LOSE

Tennis' Man Of The Decade Budge

BY DILLON GRAHAM

New York—(AP)—By a margin as thin as that of a questionabe ace that barely nicks the narrow boundary stripe, Donald Budge, California's carrot-thatched comet, gets our nomination over Britain's marvelous Fred Perry as the Man of the Decade in tennis.

FOURTH IN A SERIES

Regrettably, from a standpoint of long competitive comparison, the lanky Budge scurried into the professional ranks just when he had polished his game to perfection.

He is without doubt the world's greatest player today. Only the records of Perry and Ellsworth Vines could challenge his over the decade and Budge has beaten them often and soundly in the last year. Most experts believe he is better now than Vines or Perry ever were and possibly even better than Tilden at his best.

No man ever dominated tennis more than Budge did in 1937 and 1938, his final years as an amateur. He won both the United States and the Wimbledon singles crowns. Don beat the best the world offered, including Germany's Gottfried Von Cramm and Australia's John Bromwich and Adrian Quist.

Makes Grand Slam

He climaxed his last year by becoming the first tennist ever to complete the "grand slam" — the British, American, French and Australian championships.

Budge brought the Davis Cup back to this country after its ten-year absence and successfully defended it. The U. S. lost it again when Budge turned pro.

Outside of his grand slam, Budge's record is hardly as impressive as Perry's. The brilliant Briton won seven of his eight Davis Cup matches from 1931 through 1935. He won the Wimbledon championship in 1934-35-36 and the American championship in 1933-34-36, beating Budge in the finals the last year.

Perhaps Budge could have beaten Tilden and perhaps he couldn't but it's conceded that Tilden dominated the Twenties more thoroughly than Budge did the Thirties.

Not only a great shot maker and a marvelous competitor and showman but also a matchless strategist, Tilden definitely was Mr. Tennis of the Twenties. He was ranked first in the United States in each year of the 1920's. He won the U. S. singles championship in 1920-21-22-23-24-25-29. He was Wimbledon king in 1920-21-30.

He played in Davis Cup matches each of the ten years and was unbeaten for six years. He won 16 of 20 matches in this international competition against such aces as Norman Brookes and Gerald Patterson, Jean Borotra and Jean LaCoste.

Budge and Tilden—best of two decades.

Indiana, Minnesota Will Clash Tomorrow

Chicago—(AP)—Indiana, Purdue and Michigan—the Big Ten's three undefeated basketball title contenders—resume their victory drives tomorrow night, all favored to run their strings to three in a row.

Indiana, the most favored team of the three, opposes a young but courageous Minnesota quintet at Minneapolis. Purdue's well balanced scoring club takes on Wisconsin, while Michigan is host to the Iowa gallants who lost Monday to Indiana, 45 to 30.

Chicago, which has dropped two conference games by the total margin of three points, faces its nearby Northwestern rival in a battle expected to feature a scoring duel between the Wildcats sophomore ace, Dick Klein, and the Maroons' Dick Lounsbury, whose single handed performance almost topped Illinois Monday.

Illinois invades Ohio State, where the defending champions will be gunning for their first triumph after a slow getaway this season.

Olympics Probably "Out" But Track Should Flourish

BY DANIEL J. FERRIS
Secretary-Treasurer, Amateur Athletic Union of the United States

NEW YORK —(AP)— Though at first it seemed that the likely cancellation of the 1940 Olympic games would be a severe blow to the year's track and field program, it now appears that American athletes as well as fans are in for a banner year of competition, both indoors and out.

Undoubtedly there will be international competition, in the form of pan-American games, even if Finland does not stage the Olympics. Cuba plans an abbreviated series of games—basketball, track and field, swimming and boxing included—in late February and early March; Argentina has issued invitations for a full Olympic program in November, and here in the United States in all likelihood there will be summer games.

Although fewer track and field records than usual were set in 1939, competition was unusually keen. These two trends should continue hand-in-hand in 1940.

The only way one can account for the lack of new records is that standards already are so high that only super-athletes can improve on them. Still races and competitions this year should be more sensational than ever, since the number of athletes of outstanding ability is increasing by leaps and bounds in all fields.

Competition Is Keen

Take the most popular track events as good examples. Glenn Cunningham was the unquestioned ruler at the mile. But he is such no longer. On any given night this winter he may be defeated by Chuck Fenske, or Archie San Romani, or Louis Zamperini, or Blaine Rideout, or even the New York U. sophomore star, Leslie MacMitchell, and it will be no great shock either to the experts or the spectators.

There are three men, incidentally, who should make this one of the most interesting of all seasons for mile races. They are Zamperini, the California lad who will be appearing on the indoor circuit for the first time; MacMitchell, rated one of the best prospects to carry on where and when Cunningham leaves off, and Luigi Beccali, Olympic 1,500-meter winner at Los Angeles in 1932.

The better distribution of power at the mile holds true in other events. At two miles Don Lash will face terrific competition from Tommy Deckard, Greg Rice, Walter Nehl, Forrest Efaw and Ralph Schwartzkopf, among others. In the half-mile John Borican, John Woodruff, Curtis Giddings, Campbell Kane and Charlie Beetham all must be reckoned with, and in the 440 to 600-yard field there are John Quigley, Wes Wallace, Jim Herbert, Erwin Miller, Roy Cochrane, Jack Sulzman, Harold Cagle and Donald Watts.

Another factor that may contribute considerably to making this a standout indoor season is the likely importation of Taisto Maki of Finland, the world's No. 1 runner at distances from 3,000 to 10,000 meters.

Even without Maki's presence, the two-mile record of 8:58, now held by Lash, is the indoor mark most likely to be lowered before the last of the season's board-track meets.

LOMBARDI GIVEN CUT

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—Ernie Lombardi, whose "snooze" at home plate in the final game of the 1939 world's series gained him national fame, is on a "sitdown strike" of his own creation today. The big Cincinnati Reds catcher, snorting in disgust, returned unsigned a baseball contract which called for a salary cut of $6,000. He reportedly received $20,000 last season.

Praise, Criticism Greet Selection Of Stanford Coach

Clark Shaughnessey, Chicago, Is Given Five Year Contract

PALO ALTO, CALIF. —(AP)— Alumni had both praise and criticism today for the selection of Clark D. Shaughnessy, University of Chicago's teamless football coach, to succeed Claude E. "Tiny" Thornhill at Stanford university.

Another group of graduates, many of whom protested loudly the work of Thornhill, who was dismissed recently after the poorest Stanford season in years, preferred to reserve comment until Shaughnessy had a chance to show what he could do with the forlorn football situation here.

Shaughnessy's appointment under a five-year contract was announced yesterday by President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford. No salary figure was disclosed. Shaughnessy received about $7,500 annually at Chicago, which abolished football last month after a disastrous season.

The action of the Chicago trustees left Shaughnessy, who is 47 and holds a professor's ranking, in the unique position of a coach without a team.

Shaughnessy coached at Tulane and Loyola of New Orleans before succeeding Amos Alonzo Stagg in 1933 at the Big Ten university.

Chicago —(AP)— Every head football coach at the University of Chicago now has followed Horace Greeley's advice of "go west young man."

There were only two in Chicago's long gridiron history and both saw rather belatedly that Horace had something worth listening to.

Amos Alonzo Stagg was 70 when he departed seven years ago, and Clark Shaugnessy, who now is following him, can count 47 birthdays. The latter accepted last night a five-year contract at Stanford university.

"Retirement" figured in both moves. Stagg, who gave Chicago football 48 years ago and made it a power in Big Ten circles, went to the College of the Pacific when the university retired him in 1933.

When the university retired football as well last Dec. 21 following a series of disastrous seasons, Shaughnessy was left with a lifetime job as professor but no football team.

Shaughnessy's appointment was welcomed by Chicago alumni here. John Schommer, president of the Maroon alumni of Chicago, added that "with the better material and environment which he will have out there, you'll see Clark come up with some good football teams."

"Dream Half Mile" to Be Staged Saturday

Boston — (AP) — The hopes of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to stage a "dream half-mile" as one of the features of Saturday's track meet at the Boston Garden appeared realized today when Johnny Woodruff, the Negro star with a nine-foot stride, was added to the list.

Woodruff will meet John Borican, who set the indoor record of 1:49.2 at Dartmouth last year; Charlie Beetham, the national titlist from Ohio State; Campbell Kane, the Indiana sophomore who won the Sugar Bowl "800," and Gene Venzke, the Pennsylvania veteran.

The half-mile field appears even more impressive than the mile's star-studded list, which includes Glenn Cunningham, Charlie Fenske of Wisconsin, Archie San Romani of Kansas, the Rideout twins, Wayne and Blaine, from Denton, Tex., and Luigi Beccala of Italy, the 1932 Olympic champion.

Ruel Says White Sox Will be Contender Again This Season

West Palm Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Harold "Muddy" Ruel, veteran of 28 years in the majors, predicted today that the Chicago White Sox would be "right up there" next season and hinted they might even finish ahead of the Yankees—some day.

Ruel, coaching assistant to Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Sox, looks to the trade of Rip Radcliff to the St. Louis Browns for Julius Solters as an important maneuver by Dykes.

"Solters may be the key to our problem," Ruel said. "He is a potentially greater player than his record shows and with him out there in the outfield alongside Mike Kreevich, a great little man, we'll have a better defensive team."

The Sox infield problem is at third base, but may be settled by anyone of a number of young players coming up, Ruel said.

A great catcher himself for more than two decades, Ruel was enthusiastic about young Mike Tresh as a backstop.

The Sox missed third place in the American league by two games last season.

Denmark City Cagers In Win Over Guards

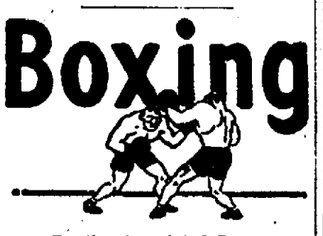

Denmark city basketball team defeated Company D cagers here last evening at Armory G, 50 to 40. The Guardsmen were outclassed and trailed all the way. The quarter score was 11 to 9 and at the half it was 24 to 15. In the third stanza the invaders had a 34 to 24 lead.

Company D will play the Kimberly reserves Saturday night at the armory as the preliminary to the Appleton-Rothschild game in the Wisconsin-Michigan league.

Gene Tunney Can't See Billy Conn as Heavyweight Titlist

Detroit —(AP)— Former champion Gene Tunney looks askance at young Billy Conn as a heavyweight fighter.

Tunney, here for a visit, expressed the hope that Conn would make a go of it in trying to build himself up from lightheavy to heavyweight, but his doubts seemed plentiful.

"Billy is a fine Irish kid, a colorful fighter and a credit to the game," Tunney said. "I'd like to see him get up where he can make the money that a heavyweight contender can make.

"But to me he seems a trifle short. Besides, he has small bones. And, worst of all, he is not a knockout puncher.

Tunney himself came up from lightheavy to heavyweight, but he pointed out that "I was six feet one and big-boned when I started."

Coordination of Boxing Bodies Is Asked at Dinner

Eddie Neil Memorial Program Offers Opportunity for Discussion

BY JUDSON BAILEY

New York—(AP)—Vowing common motives, the boxing solons still are as far apart as ever on governing the fight game.

The sore spot of the sport was given some ventilation last night at the dinner of the New York boxing writers for the presentation of the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy to light heavyweight champion Billy Conn.

It wasn't that the topic was particularly appropriate, but the boxing clan is an individualistic lot with few chances to huddle over its mutual problems. The annual dinner in memory of Eddie Neil, Associated Press sports writer and foreign correspondent killed while covering the war in Spain, provided the opportunity.

Abe Greene, chairman of the New Jersey athletic commission, precipitated the discussion by declaring:

"For too long there have been discordant opinions between the National Boxing association and the New York commission. The N. B. A. speaks for the hinterlands and New York is the hub for the bigger boxing attractions. They need to get together. It doesn't have to be contractual, but there can be a meeting of minds and hearts."

Lieut. Col. Harvey Miller of Washington, chairman of the N. B. A., pointed out that of the eight world champions recognized in the United States, only one was from New York.

He said "the NBA takes credit because it ruled it would recognize no light heavyweight champion until he had beaten Conn."

(This apparently referred to New York's recognizing Melio Bettina as champion after John Henry Lewis abandoned the title last winter).

Then the N. B. A. chief sought to minimize differences between the two bodies by relating that "we have had reams of correspondence with each other, all constructive."

Dean's Contract Back In Chicago Unsigned

Chicago—(AP)—"Dizzy" Dean's 1940 contract with the Chicago Cubs is back in the Cubs' offices with no signature on the dotted line.

Instead, Dean sent from Dallas, Tex., a note to Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the team, which said:

"I realize I haven't been much help to the club the last two years, but I still think the cut is too big. However, I'm sure we can adjust things and I'll be all set for spring training on time."

Dean, reported to have received $20,500 last season, was offered half as much as the result of winning only six games in 1939. Charles Drake, assistant to Wrigley, said yesterday Dean wants $15,000. Drake indicated that Wrigley would give consideration to Dean's request soon.

Marquette, Detroit Cagers Resume Play

Milwaukee—(AP)—Marquette University cagers will invade Detroit again tomorrow, for the second successive weekend, this time to renew a basketball series with the University of Detroit which terminated in 1933.

The Hilltoppers have won 11 of the 12 games with Detroit since 1922.

Last week Marquette won from Wayne University at Detroit, 42 to 39.

Coach Bill Chandler has promoted Bill Staffeld to a regular Hilltop guard position in view of his fine showing recently. Bobby Deneen and Bill McDonald remain at forwards, Ralph Amsden at center and big Bill Komenich at the other guard.

Detroit's attack is sparked by Bob Calihan who scored 267 points last year.

Foster Undecided on Wisconsin Cage Squad

Madison—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin basketball squad will leave late today, after a short workout, for LaFayette, Ind., to meet the strong Purdue University cagers in the third conference game of the season for both teams tomorrow night.

The Badgers have failed to bounce back following their defeat by the University of Michigan here Monday, a game for which they had keyed themselves with renewed optimism after the previous victory over Chicago.

Coach Harold Foster has tried several combinations of players in practice, but said yesterday he had not decided who would start against Purdue. He was troubled particularly over guard assignments.

Milwaukee Team to Show at Kimberly

Kimberly—The clubhouse is expected to be filled to capacity Sunday afternoon when Father Hietpas' Holy Name Midgets tangle with St. Benedicts, colored grade school cagers of Milwaukee. The preliminary game will have boys of third grade age, putting on their act.

The visitors have class, but word from their coach to Rev. Hietpas, indicates they expect a battle royal from the midgets.

A small fee will be charged which will be used to purchase new uniforms for the Holy Name boys.

Columbus Red Birds May be Home Owned

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—Negotiations for the sale of the Columbus Red Birds of the American association to a local syndicate are "practically completed," the Ohio State Journal said today.

The Columbus club now is owned by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league. Cardinal officials conferred in Cincinnati yesterday with T. Lee Huntington and Richard T. Rector, Columbus sportsmen.

"If the Red Birds become home owned," the paper said it learned, "a working agreement will be formed with the Cardinals for at least two years."

Approval of the sale by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis was expected early next week, the Journal added.

Two Cage Games at St. Joe Hall Tonight

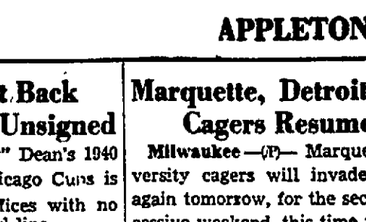

Two basketball games are scheduled tonight at St. Joseph hall. At 7 o'clock the St. Joseph girls team will meet the girls CYO team of Kaukauna. At 8 o'clock the Junior Holy Name team of St. Joseph church will meet the Kaukauna CYO team.

Tuesday evening the girls' team will meet Keshena Indian girls and the boys will meet St. Joseph High school team of Keshena. The teams clashed at Keshena recently with the Appleton squads winning, 14 to 12 and 40 to 21.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A SHORT HISTORY OF RUSSIA
III—Peter Ordered Building of St. Petersburg.

A quaint old picture shows Peter the Great aboard a rowboat on a lake during a storm. The artist painted him standing up in a way which surely would have made him rock the boat! Very likely the artist's picture is not true to life.

A wish to have a city near the sea led Czar Peter to plan the building of St. Petersburg. By royal order, this city rose in northwestern Russia on islands at the eastern end of the Gulf of Finland. The place was fitted to be a port for ships going in and out of the Baltic sea.

On a May day in 1703, Peter cut the sod at the center of one of the islands, and a few minutes later a stone casket was buried there. In the casket were the bones of a saint and several gold coins. "At this spot," said Peter, "a church must be built."

Forty thousand men were set to work, laying out the city and putting up buildings. Among the workmen were soldiers and farmers who had been called together from many parts of Russia. They transported soil, stones and wood, carrying loads on their backs.

There were marshes to be filled, and the work was hard. Men fell sick, and hundreds of them died. Some of the sick said they didn't want doctors because they would rather die than to labor like slaves.

The building of St. Petersburg dragged on for years, and nearly all hated the city before it was "finished." One who did not hate it was Peter the Great. Living in a three-room log cabin, he watched what was going on, and was happy.

Meanwhile a war broke out between Russia and Sweden. When prisoners were taken by the Russians, they were sent to St. Petersburg to join in the work. Peter gave an order that no stone mason in Russia should work anywhere except in the city he was building, which was to be the capital of his empire.

St. Peterburg was made the Russian capital six years after the first sod was turned. It grew rapidly, and in a half a century it had a population of 80,000. Today it is known as Leningrad. Although it is no longer the capital, it ranks next to Moscow among Russia's cities.

2,983 DOLLARS

Houston, Tex. —(AP)— The city of Houston ignored six-tenths of a cent on a contract and saved $2,983.

A contract was awarded a nursery company for landscaping the new city hall. The second low bidder protested the company had failed to fulfill the requirement of posting 10 per cent of the bid, because its check was short sixteenth of a cent of the exact amount.

If the city had thrown out the first award because of this technical error, it would have lost $2,983, the difference between the bids.

Classes in World Problems Will be Launched Tuesday

First Program Will be Presented at Park School PTA Meeting

Kaukauna — Announcement of a series of discussion classes on current world problems, beginning Tuesday, was made today by William T. Sullivan, vocational school director. The first session will be held at the Park school PTA meeting, with others slated for the library clubrooms.

Grant C. Haas, a well known student of current history and commentator on world affairs, will conduct the classes. He has conducted, for five years a column on world affairs for a Madison newspaper, lectured over the radio and spoken before many organizations and conventions.

Six lecture-discussions will be given by Grant, with attention to topics desired by those attending. Each lecture will be preceded by a 15-minute review of the past week's developments on the war and diplomatic fronts. The topics include the European war; sources of world news; democracy, what it is and what it is not; the rise of post-war dictatorships; Hitler and national socialism; Mussolini and fascism; communism—Lenin, Trotsky, Stalin; the strategy of raw materials; imperialism and power politics; militarism and navalism; international law, treaties, world courts, leagues; the United States in world affairs; Japan and the far east; South America, the western hemisphere; a future American foreign policy; prospects for world peace; neutrality and avoidance of war.

Grant has conducted adult classes and forums on world problems at Madison for three years, and traveled extensively in Europe before, during and after the war, in which he was a soldier. Two years ago he toured ten countries by auto, interviewing public officials and American newspaper correspondents in every capital.

No registration fee or charge of any kind will be made for the public lectures, Sullivan said.

FOOLED YOU!

Richmond, Va.—(AP)—The trial was over—but the evidence lingered on. Court attaches explained, in response to puzzled sniffling about Justice Elben Folkes' bench, that contents had been spilled from a jug used as evidence in the case of a man charged with selling without a license. The jug had contained high-powered perfume.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Report Increase in Plantings of Winter Wheat, Rye in State

Wisconsin's winter wheat and rye acreage is about 5 per cent larger than estimated for the state a year ago, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

Early intentions of Wisconsin farmers indicated a much larger acreage of winter wheat and rye than is shown in the latest estimate. The fall was dry and discouraged the seeding of winter grains.

About 45,000 acres of winter wheat and 358,000 acres of rye were seeded on Wisconsin farms this fall. A year ago estimates indicated that there were 43,000 acres of winter wheat and 341,000 acres of rye in the state. The acreages of both crops is larger than the 10-year average.

The nation's acreage of winter wheat is estimated at about 45 million acres, which is 3 per cent smaller than the acreage a year ago. With a 21 per cent decrease in the rye seedings as compared with the acreage a year ago, the rye acreage in the United States is estimated at over 5½ million acres.

Soil Saving Exhibits Displayed at 21 Fairs

Conservation of the soil and other resources, plus bringing to public attention the latest research findings, was the theme of the federal department of agriculture exhibits at 21 of the nation's largest state, national and international fairs and expositions during 1939, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

More than 14,000,000 people saw department exhibits at these and smaller fairs during the year, reports the department's exhibit section in the extension service.

Seventeen of the twenty-one new exhibits were built during the year in furtherance of sound soil conservation and balanced farming practices. These and exhibits revised during the year make up 10 full carloads of exhibit material, each on a special subject or selected for a definite region.

The department exhibit section during the year built and displayed a general government exhibit at the World Poultry congress in Cleveland, Ohio. It represented the work and recommendations to poultrymen of seven major departments and branches of the government serving the poultry industry and was the largest and most complete exhibit ever built by the federal government related to a single industry.

Take Inventories Of Soil Resources Of State Farm Land

"Inventories" of soil resources on 40 square miles of Wisconsin farm land have been completed by the soil conservation service field offices attached to the area office at Eau Claire, E. J. Peterson, area conservationist, states in a letter to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

The "inventories" consisted of maps on which were recorded data on soil types, degree of erosion, steepness of slope, and present land use. The data are being used in planning soil conservation programs for the land.

Practices to be employed on the surveyed land include contour tillage, strip-cropping, terracing, revision of cropping systems to provide the maximum possible protection of steep acres, gully control through the use of sod, trees, and dams, and the assignment to and management of woodlots on areas which are not conducive to the growing of feed and truck crops.

Most of the "inventories" were made in three soil conservation districts, organized by farmers under the terms of Wisconsin's soil conservation district law. The districts are Beaver Creek in Trempealeau county, Upper Pigeon creek in Jackson and Trempealeau counties, and the Buffalo county number one district in Buffalo county.

Surveys were made in the work areas of CCC camps located at Ellsworth, Menomonie, Cochrane, and Nelson, and on 11 demonstration farms in Chippewa, Clark, Barron, Eau Claire, and Waupaca counties.

Make Survey for Protection of White Pine From Blister Rust

With 22,542 acres of Wisconsin white pine receiving their first protection against blister rust in 1939, the area of white pines accorded initial protection against that disease in this state now totals 243,053 acres or two-thirds of the state's valuable white pine, according to a department of agriculture bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

The increase in areas given initial protection from the ravages of blister rust was effected through the cooperation of six federal agencies, two state agencies, and several individuals, according to E. L. Chambers, chief of the plant industry division of the state department of agriculture.

To protect the 22,542 acres of pine last year it was necessary to remove more than 5½ million currant and gooseberry bushes from 74,350 acres of land surrounding individual pine stands in 29 counties. In addition, 417,099 currant and gooseberry bushes were removed from 24,295 acres of land which previously had been cleared of these blister rust hosts, protecting 9,514 acres of pine from renewed attack by regenerated currant and gooseberry bushes.

Remove Bushes

The program is carried on by the state department of agriculture, the state conservation department, and the United States department of agriculture. Since its inception in Wisconsin more than 78 million currant and gooseberry bushes have been removed from 937,857 acres of protected zones.

Mapping of white pine areas was carried on during the winter months of 1939 in preparation for blister rust eradication work in 1940. Pre-eradication survey data was recorded in connection with 17,740 acres of white pine and white pine planting sites, bringing the total area of mapped white pine and planting sites in the state to 324,160 acres.

As a result of this survey work, the acreage of valuable white pine in Wisconsin has been estimated at 387,209 acres.

During 1939 a total of 85,859 inspections for cultivated black currants in 23 counties revealed the existence of that host to blister rust in 276 locations. Since the cultivated black currant is responsible for the long distance spread of white pine blister rust, it has been condemned as a public nuisance in the state and is being removed on a county-wide basis in counties with white pine of commercial value.

This bull has just been proven and his first five daughters produced in 305 days an average of 396 pounds of butterfat at two years of age. The dam of this calf, Cherry Bold Erickson Colantha is also a daughter of a proven sire, King Pieterje Ormsby Penseath Fifth, who during the past five years has averaged 550 pounds of butter fat with her best H. I. R record of 16,247 lbs. of milk and 571 lbs. of butterfat in 326 days at the age of six years and 11 months.

A. testing work, has recently purchased a heifer calf from Leonard Mirsberger's high producing herd and sired by Sir Bonny Orsby Fobes, recently secured by Mr. Mirsberger from the Tittle farm near Plymouth. This sire's dam was grand champion at the 1938 state fair and has a production record of 17,860 lbs. of milk and 585 lbs. of butterfat in 305 days.

Attend to Child's Wants, PTA Told

'Remember Your Own Childhood Interests,' Whinfield Suggests

Neenah—"Don't forget your own child hood desires and interests as you train your children," Harold Whinfield, Sheboygan Parent Teacher Council president, told parents and teachers of associations in the Twin Cities Thursday evening in the Neenah High school auditorium as he urged sympathetic understanding and cooperation in the child's urges to express himself, in his interest in sensory contact, in muscular development, in his urge to collect and in his urge to be happy.

"Parents are a peculiar tribe," declared Mr. Whinfield. "They have so many outside interests one might believe that they rear children as a pastime. Don't worry as much about the environment and heredity as about the child's wants and desires and interests. Children are our greatest resource but we spend less time training them and getting acquainted with them than farmers do with training cattle or other animals or we do following our own interests."

H. F. Schnell, Sixth district PTA president, also of Sheboygan who accompanied Mr. Whinfield to Neenah, outlined the work of a PTA Council, stating that it was not merely another association, not merely an organization for the sake of having officers, but it was a cooperative unit of all associations for the furtherance of projects to benefit all youth. It is desirable, the speaker pointed out, to pool the efforts, not to repeat activity of one association but to sponsor projects which one association could not do alone.

Mrs. George Hrubecky, study club chairman of the Roosevelt PTA, sponsors of the Thursday evening meeting, introduced the speakers.

Menasha Has Least Number of Accidents In Winnebago County

Post-Crescent Oshkosh bureau

Oshkosh — The city of Menasha had the best traffic record in 1939, reporting but 8 per cent of the highway accidents in Winnebago county, according to statistics released by Floyd L. Wright, county safety head.

The city of Neenah had the next best record for last year and was responsible for only 11 per cent of the county's traffic mishaps, the survey showed. Rural areas throughout the county recorded 35 per cent of the accidents and Oshkosh was responsible for the lion's share—46 per cent.

Neenah was the only city reporting no traffic deaths. Menasha and Oshkosh each had one while the county rural areas reported 11. Oshkosh reported 30 per cent of the traffic injuries and the rural areas were responsible for 57 per cent.

The town of Menasha was the most dangerous. It reported 46 accidents and 2 fatalities while the town of Oshkosh ran a close second with 45 accident and 3 fatalities. The town of Wolf River was low with three accidents and no highway deaths.

Jews Hated Because of Virtues, Not Vices, Rotary Club Is Told

Neenah — Contending that "violent persecution against the Jews will never cease," I. A. Abroham, Green Bay, said in a talk to the Neenah Rotary club Thursday noon at the Valley Inn that the "Jews aren't hated because of their vices, but they are hated because of their virtues."

"Doomed to persecution and misery, injustice and oppression and humiliation, the Jews today are being driven from one country to another with no companions except misery and disease, and no nation is kind enough to open its door to them. They are suffering because they happened to be born Jews."

"The Jews aren't hated because they crucified Jesus Christ, but they are hated because they gave Jesus to a pagan world, and He didn't fit in with the pagans." Abroham charged.

He defined Christianity as an "ultra-veneer on paganism, and in times of stress, it vanished like snow in August."

The Green Bay man, who said he isn't a professional Jew nor a propagandist, told the Rotarians that Christianity is a converting religion with the Bible and the sword working hand in hand. Christianity compromised with paganism and lost its soul, and today true Christians are suffering. "It won't be long before the Catholics and then the Protestants and all other denominations will be in the same boat with us."

Evil Is Organized

The good can't succeed because it always is unorganized, while the evil is organized, Abroham said, and he added that evil is sitting on the thrones of Germany, Russia and Italy.

Pointing out that the Jewish problem really isn't a Jewish problem, Abroham said that it must be solved by Christianity today. "You may solve it by becoming Christians. I don't ask you to become Jews, just Christians, but I doubt that the majority of Christians will ever become Christians.

"There is a need for the creation of a social order in which the soul may be preserved on mutual respect and inner differences mutually respected."

Must Develop Christianity

Stating that the Jews can't commit suicide as a people, that their destiny was not self destruction and can't be an historical accident, the speaker said that the time will come when Christians will join hands with God himself and make this a better world for all. "But first, they must develop Christianity, and if you don't hasten, others will do it for you. The Hindu will bring Christianity to you."

He said, "The manner in which you may solve this problem is by following the dream of Jesus Christ, rule by love and by truth." He advised the Gentiles to study more the manner of Christ's living than the manner of his death and "turn the beautiful dream into reality."

Abroham said that he wasn't a messenger of good will, for it would be useless, for if the Jew is to receive the good will of the Christian, it should come from the majority, and to plea for good will is undignified.

St. Peter Cagers To Invade Menasha

St. Mary Squad Will Defend Its Share of Conference Lead

Menasha — St. Mary High school cagers will defend their share of the lead in the Fox Valley Catholic conference at 8 o'clock tonight when they play St. Peter's of Oshkosh at St. Mary gymnasium.

Reserve teams of the two schools will clash in a preliminary game at 7 o'clock. Both the Zephyr varsity and reserve squad scored victories in the first game between the two schools at Oshkosh earlier in the season.

The Zephyrs have won four straight in the conference but are in a tie for first place because St. Norbert High school of DePere has won both of the conference games it has played. The Zephyrs will battle St. Norbert next Thursday night at St. Mary's gymnasium. Originally scheduled for next Friday night, the game was advanced so that it will not conflict with the Neenah-Menasha game at the Menasha High school gymnasium.

Coach Robert Zuercher probably will stick to his regular combination tonight, starting N. Griesbach and J. Schuller at forwards, Farnham Johnson at center, and W. Resch and S. Burghardt at guards. If the game is similar to the first one at Oshkosh, which the Zephyrs won, 32 to 17, the St. Mary's reserves will have ample opportunity to play.

Pegler Says Dies Doesn't Owe His Critics Anything

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The report of the Dies committee has received much approval, rising in some cases to the pitch of cheers, but some of the standard New Deal package goods dispatches out of Washington have taken a peculiar attitude in their embarrassment. Dies and his committee were expected to turn out in their report a masterpiece of clumsy absurdity, but he crossed up the propagandists of the administration by delivering something that was distinctly major league.

Pegler

Dies was heckled in his own hearings and harassed constantly in print by a campaign of ridicule, for most of which, it may readily be admitted, he furnished plenty of raw material. But when he unexpectedly delivered a good report he was attacked with fresh vigor, obviously inspired by chagrin, on the ground that he had not prepared the report himself alone. It was also reported—and with such similarity of detail as to suggest a propaganda pipe line—that the more liberal members of the committee made a chump of Mr. Dies one day by proposing that now was the time to name the Communists in the New Deal and that Dies, thus confronted, could not make good.

It is immaterial whether Dies himself prepared the report or employed a ghost, and the New Deal propaganda corps should be the last to criticize any man on such grounds in view of the admitted fact that President Roosevelt himself often obtains several drafts of a speech or state paper from members of his political household and selects one or a combination of several as the version for which he will take the credit or the blame. This is a practice which has been defended by the New Deal claque with such enthusiasm and skill that it has received public approval. Therefore, Dies was only following distinguished precedent, and the merits of the report cannot be used against him.

As to his inability to name any Communists in the New Deal, there is more to be said than merely that he wouldn't or couldn't name names when and if he was challenged or put on the spot. He could no doubt have named many individuals who have all the characteristics of Communists and who, up to the invasion of Poland and Finland by the Russian army, had nothing but praise and excuses for the Stalin government and little else but abuse and contempt for the American system. He could have pointed out that when Harold Ickes found occasion to deliver speeches he turned up as the guest of the Lawyers' guild and the Newspaper guild, both of which organizations have been strongly influenced and imposed upon by Communist agents.

Administration Always Tolerant to Communists

Dies might have developed the fact that, although this administration has been opposed to Hitlerism from the very beginning, there had always been, until the Russian alliance with Germany, a generous tolerance for communism and Communists. Communism, although indistinguishable from Hitlerism, was a meritorious experiment, but Hitlerism was a vile thing. No nazi, imported or domestic, was welcome in the administration, either socially or politically, but individuals who lacked only Communist party cards to confirm their identity were welcome.

It will be recalled that when Dies was investigating nazi activities he was congratulated by the same press that was to slash at him a little later for using the same methods on the Communist conspiracy. And it may be pointed out that on a previous occasion the same propaganda vigorously defended a 100 per cent New Dealer whose methods of investigation had been even more dangerous to civil liberties than those of the Dies committee. That one would be Senator Black of Alabama. But Senator Black was not run out of public life or even reproved for his ethics and methods. On the contrary, amid cheers from the New Deal claque, this late backslid member of a night-riding and lynching organization was appointed to the United States supreme court as one who would "liberalize" the court.

Dies was guilty of much awkward foolishness, but to those who condoned Black's methods of investigation and the deliberate degradation of the supreme court intended and achieved by his appointment he owes not even the courtesy of a contemptuous reply. Look at their hands.

Haas Says U. S. Should Hold Good Neighbor Policy

Warns Against Taking 'Lordly Attitude' Toward South America

Neenah — Warning the United States not to take a lordly attitude toward its neighbors in South and Central America, Grant C. Haas, Madison, in a talk last night at Kimberly school, advised the United States to concentrate, as President Roosevelt has been doing, on a good neighbor policy.

He said that the United States should try to make South American countries feel that they are a part of the Monroe doctrine and not victims of it.

In a review of the news during the last two weeks, Haas, who opened his second series of lectures on world affairs last night, said that Chamberlain's speech was disappointing and that the president's choice of Myron Taylor as his representative to the Vatican was a good one.

Sees Long Conflict

He predicted that the war still will be going on a year from now because France and England haven't changed their aims and neither has Germany, and the latter country hasn't suffered a great deal so far.

He told more than 100 persons attending the lecture that Germany is trying to get Russia to withdraw from Finland and turn to the near east, England's nearest oil supply.

The American foreign policy, he said, depends a great deal on how the United States can get along with what it has in resources, together with the things it hasn't but needs and can obtain from South America.

BUY A FARM NOW!

There never was a better time. Farms were never cheaper, and will probably not be cheaper in the future, than they are right now. Also, prices of nearly all farm products are steadily rising.

We have farms of all different sizes . . . owned by elderly people or people who for one reason or another are incapacitated for further farming and desire to sell their farms. Most of these people will accept a house and lot as part payment on the purchase of their farms. Some of the farms have federal loans on them large enough to make it possible for a purchaser to buy with a cash outlay of only about $3,000 above the amount of the mortgage.

Come in and see us now during the winter and talk it over . . . and be ready to buy a farm in the early spring.

Development of Plastics Should Benefit Farmers

Babson Says Chemists Scoring Victories in War of Substitutes

BY ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Fla.—A war just as grim and far-reaching in its implications as those raging in Europe and Asia is being fought out in every factory in North America. It's the War of the Substitutes — nylon against silk and rayon, pliofilm against rubber and cotton, plastacele against wood and sheet metal. So far the chemists have won one decisive victory after another. Their new brain children, conceived in retorts and crucibles, are now used in 50,000 ways never dreamed of 5 or 10 years ago.

Babson

Plastics, these new materials are called. They are a combination of chemicals, sold in various compounds by the chemists. Manufacturers put these compounds into molds, dies, and the like and under heat and pressure they are formed into various designs. From the molds, for instance, comes the plastic in its final form ready for use,—telephone sets, steering wheels, radio cabinets, safety glass, buttons and thousands of other products. Or the compound may be cast into rods, sheets, or tubes. Then these are sawed, machined, turned, cut into whatever final shape is desired.

Test Tube Pedigree

This is a rough and simple description of the plastic process. Actually, it is tremendously complicated. In the original experiments plastics are built up synthetically, molecule by molecule, to possess the same qualities as natural products—stone, wood, metals. More than that, their chemical sires improve upon the natural substance in lightness, strength, and beauty of color. They have a scientific pedigree. These synthetic substitutes—"Ersatz" they call them in Germany—can be roughly divided into four general types:

1. Vegetables Plastics: Cellulose, made from powdered spruce or cotton linters, is their base. They are tough and resilient, take a bright polish in colors. You see them most often on the "dash" of your car and as the housing for your radio. By a different treatment, cellulose comes out as thread for rayon underwear and curtain fabrics, stealing the spotlight from silk. Now, from another base, comes nylon to assault the last great citadel of silk—milady's stockings.

2. Mineral Plastics: Carbolic acid is their base. The test-tube magicians mix it with formaldehyde and call this group the phenolics. They are strong and durable, good insulators, excellent molders. You use them every time you pick up the phone, plug in your bridge lamp, "vac" the living-room rug.

3. Gas And Air Plastics: Urea is their base. They are a combination of four common gases. Some are translucent. Most have bright and gay or soft and delicate colors. Newest of the ureas—lucite and plexiglas are wholly transparent—clearer than glass! Unbreakable eyeglasses, super-safety glass, covers for bomber cockpits are the uses of these new concoctions.

4. Animal Plastics: Casein extracted from sour cow's milk is the base These are old plastics but they are finding new uses every day. Every time you button your vest or take off your overcoat, you're using this old stand-by. Lanital is the newest casein plastic. It's an artificial wool which much resembles the real thing.

Rubbing Aladdin's Lamp

There are literally thousands of these plastics being used now. They are popular because they combine advantages of their own in addition to those of the natural material. It's like rubbing Aladdin's Lamp. If your new substance is waterproof. No wonder this is the Chemical Age!

Here are just a handful of reasons why the plastics are crowding out the natural materials in this "War of the Substitutes": Easy to mold: light and strong; warm and smooth; good insulators; easy to clean; durable and non-corrosive; low manufacturing cost.

"Ersatz" are children of adversity. Plastics rooted themselves in the shade and darkness of the worst depression years. They have grown by leaps and bounds since then. But they have only scratched the surface of their possibilities. Technical progress is rushing ahead. When the plastics finally come to grips with the Maginot line of the natural materials—automobile bodies—the war will enter its final stage. Moreover, it is not being too optimistic to think of all-plastic automobiles and all-plastic airplanes.

Plastic Planes

America's plane capacity could be speeded tremendously if "duramold" (a plastic made of hardwood veneers pressed with phenolic resin) proves successful. One of the big time takers in plane building is the driving of as many as 300,000 rivets in some planes. In contrast, the shell of the "plastic plane" comes in only three parts—wings and body. Success of this process means stronger, lighter, faster, and far more economical methods of building and operating. From plastic airplanes to plastic terraplanes (automobiles) would be the next step.

This War of the Substitutes means more than a battle between materials. It means vast social changes. For instance, a town built around a factory whose metal product is captured by "Ersatz" must find a new article to make or lay off its workers. Metal mines, ore railroads, cabinet shops, silk mills, may all be caught in the backwash of this epoch-making war. Big beneficiaries, will be the farmers. The plastic army carries a bright beacon of hope for them—settlement of their two-decade old problem of price-busting surpluses. Remember, the basis for two of the four plastic groups is farm products!

Roosevelt Uncertain About Travel Program During 1940

Washington—(AP)— President Roosevelt told reporters today he was going to start his 1940 traveling with a trip to his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., the end of the month.

The roof of his new library is on, he said, and some of the floor has been laid. The library will house his personal and private papers.

Asked at his press conference whether he planned to go to the west coast in April, the president said he did not believe so but that April was a long time away.

His press conference touched on a variety of other subjects ranging from legislation to politics.

Replying to questions the president said:

He had talked about the continuing problem of Puerto Rico at a conference this week with Governor William D. Leahy.

He will see, next Monday or Tuesday, the American delegation which went to Ottawa for preliminary conversations looking toward a new treaty with Canada for development of the St. Lawrence waterway.

If Canadian negotiations come to Washington he may see them.

A minister to Ireland will be appointed in the near future, but the president said he did not know when or whom.

He has looked further into Pennsylvania politics since he talked a few days ago with John B. Kelly, Philadelphia Democratic leader.

Asked with whom he had talked, the chief executive replied in a facetious vein that he had had a lot of spiritual communing.

Some one inquired whether he had seen David L. Lawrence, Pennsylvania Democratic leader. The president said first that he believed Lawrence was here the other day and then added that he believed his communication with him was one of the spiritual communings.

Another inquiry dealt with whether he would make public a report from the interstate commerce commission on a proposed Lake Erie-Ohio river waterway. Mr. Roosevelt said he would have to check up on the matter, but that he had not seen anything on it for a couple of months.

Joseph E. Davies On U. W. Program

Will Talk From Washington, D. C., to Founders' Day Dinner

Madison—(AP)—Joseph E. Davies, special assistant to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, will speak from Washington, D. C., on the program arranged for the University of Wisconsin's annual Founders' day ceremonies on Feb. 7, it was announced today.

The ceremonies will be broadcast from 8:30 to 9:00 p. m. (C.S.T.) over stations on the blue network of the National Broadcasting Co. WENR, of Chicago, will be the principal mid-western outlet.

The program, sponsored by the alumni association, will originate in part from a dinner meeting on the campus. Speakers will include C. A. Dykstra, university president; Howard T. Greene, president of the alumni association, and Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy, of Milwaukee.

Davies, who recently was ambassador to Russia and Belgium, was graduated from the university in 1898. He formerly lived in Watertown and Madison.

Alumni groups throughout the country will hold meetings at the time of the broadcast.

Spends 36 Cents to Pay 37-Cent Tax Bill

Salt Lake City—(AP)—It cost one Salt Lake countian 36 cents to pay a 37-cent tax. He sent the money order special delivery, registered mail.

County Treasurer J. H. Jarvis calculated the cost like this: money order five cents, postage three cents, return receipt three cents, registration fifteen cents and special delivery ten cents.

Fleissner Is Given Broughton's Approval

Sheboygan—(AP)—Charles E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman, announced today he had recommended John P. Fleissner for re-appointment as postmaster at Milwaukee.

"This recommendation has been made after long and careful consideration and is based on a record of efficiency that places the office in the front rank among the large cities of the country," Broughton said.

Plan No Inquest in Edward Pocan Death

No inquest will be held in the death of Edward Pocan, 67, 812 W. Washington street, who died Dec. 15 after collapsing while at work in the chlorine department of the Fox River Paper company mill, Raymond P. Dohr, district attorney, said today after receiving a report on the post mortem. Dohr stated the post mortem showed Pocan died of hardening of the arteries, heart trouble, and a wetness in the lungs which probably was superinduced by chlorine.

Son of Fire Chief Is Held for False Alarms

Jersey City, N. J.—(AP)—John Magee, 20-year-old son of a retired battalion fire chief, was sentenced to 90 days in jail in criminal court today on seven charges of disorderly conduct for turning in false fire alarms.

Deputy Police Chief John J. Underwood said Magee turned in the alarms because he wanted to see fire engines speeding along the streets.

Damage Action Is Ruled a Non-Suit

Court Decides Against Widow of Man Electrocuted Picking Apples

Waukesha—(AP)—The second $15,000 damage trial brought by Mrs Luella Oesterreich, widow of a Milwaukee fireman, against the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company and Henry Claas, town of Menomonee farm, ended yesterday when Circuit Judge Henry Lockney ruled a non-suit.

Oesterreich was electrocuted on the Claas farm in September, 1937, when he touched a wire while picking apples.

After Mrs. Oesterreich's attorneys concluded their case, Judge Lockney granted the defense motion for dismissal on the ground that no proof of negligence had been established.

Judge Lockney ordered the case retried after a jury in the court of the late Circuit Judge C. M. Davison awarded Mrs. Oesterreich $8,183, absolved Claas, found the gas and electric company 75 per cent negligent and Oesterreich 25 per cent negligent. He refused to approve the judgment, Judge Lockney said, because he could not as a "successor judge." He followed Judge Davison on the bench.

Aimee Zillmer Will Speak at Meeting of Edison School PTA

Aimee Zillmer, lecturer on social hygiene for the state board of health, will be the speaker at the January meeting of the Edison school Parent-teacher association Monday night in the auditorium of Edison school. The meeting will begin at 7:30.

The association will discuss and vote whether or not the parent-teacher group will affiliate with the state and national Congress of Parent-Teachers. This matter has been under study by a committee of parents and teachers headed by Mr. and Mrs. Leigh S. Wolfe since the November meeting. The committee will present findings of their study to the group. Since its organization 20 years ago the Edison association has been unaffiliated with the organized parent-teacher movement.

In charge of the program for the meeting are Mr. and Mrs. Earle Fourness. The social hour will be under a committee of parent host and hostesses working with Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Grist, hospitality chairmen.

Apportion Funds For Trails, Roads In Federal Forests

State of Wisconsin Will Get $45,319 for Highway Uses

Washington—(AP)—The agriculture department announced today the apportionment of $13,000,000 for construction and maintenance of highways, truck trails and other roads in national forests.

The funds will be used in 40 states, Puerto Rico and Alaska to maintain and augment the present system of approximately 173,000 miles of roads in the nation's 160 national forests.

The apportionment for each state is determined under a law which requires that 50 per cent be based on the value of national forest land in the state and 50 per cent on the area of the state's national forest lands.

The apportionment gave $8,666,667 for forest highways in 40 states, Puerto Rico and Alaska and $4,333,333 for construction and maintenance of truck trails and other trails or forest development roads in national forests in 39 states and Puerto Rico and Alaska.

The $8,666,667 will be expended upon federal aid, state and county highways which are a part of the approved forest highway systems of the states, the projects being selected cooperatively by regional foresters of the United States Forest service, engineers of the public roads administration and state highway commissions.

The $4,333,333 of trail funds are allotted to the individual national forest under the direction of the regional foresters.

Among the apportionments were: Illinois, $9,169 for forest highways and $36,116 for truck and other trails; Indiana $1,959 and $6,044; Iowa $40 and nothing; Kentucky $16,796 and $39,916; Michigan $71,844 and $81,584; Minnesota $111,427 and $63,525; Missouri $64,031 and $49,951; Ohio $1,815 and $1,277; Wisconsin $45,319 and $48,547.

Prices of Wheat Slump to Lowest Levels in Month

Tumble 2 Cents Before Buying Prompts Moderate Rally

Chicago—(AP)— Wheat prices tumbled about 2 cents a bushel again today before enough buying appeared to right the market and cause a moderate rally. Prices reached the lowest level in a month.

Stop-loss selling, closing out of lines because of need of additional margin, and liquidation inspired by continued weakness of securities dominated trade much of the time.

Reports of large-scale buying of southern hemisphere wheat by the United Kingdom, probably referring to yesterday's news concerning contracting for almost half of the Australian surplus, had a depressing effect on North American markets.

Receipts were: Wheat two cars, corn 59, oats 37.

Wheat closed ¼-1¼ cents lower than yesterday, May 98⅞-⅞, July 96¼-⅜; corn ¼-½ down, May 57¼-⅜, July 57⅛-¼; oats ¼-½ down.

Export sales of United States corn to the United Kingdom were estimated at 1,000,000 bushels, the largest business in recent weeks.

New Sterilizing Equipment to be Used at Bordens

Installation of System Will be Completed About March 1

New London — Installation of a modern continuous system of sterilizing to replace the old-style batch method was begun at the Borden Milk Products plant here this week. The new system, now in wide use throughout Wisconsin and the nation will revolutionize the handling of canned evaporated milk at the New London plant.

The new equipment, which is leased by the Anderson-Barngrover division of the Food Machinery corporation, is expected here from San Jose, Calif., about Feb. 1 and the installation is expected to be ready for production about March 1, according to G. A. Wells, superintendent.

All installation work will be done by local Borden employes. Workmen started this week to relocate two of the five old-style sterilizers which will be retained to handle gallon-sized confectionery cans. The other three will be removed entirely. The change-over is being made during the seasonal slack period.

Three New Units

Three new units will be installed, two for the handling of tall sized cans and one for the small size. The tall will handle 200 cans per minute and the small 250. The continuous machines consist of three separate tanks, one for preheating, one for sterilizing and the third for cooling. Cans will move steadily through each in succession on a continuous track, about 50 minutes being required for the complete processing of a can.

Under the old system the canned milk is sterilized in batches in one large single tank in which both heating and cooling operations take place. The cans are handled in iron trays which are loaded into the sterilizers in iron baskets.

The new system will not greatly increase the speed of production, according to Mr. Wells, but will lend new efficiency to the handling, storing and shipping of the canned milk. The continuous track will eliminate the use of approximately 1,500 iron trays and the transfer to 260,000 wooden storage trays. Already last week a carload of the wooden trays was shipped away and eventually the entire stock will be removed.

Outlay of $50,000

Re-handling of the wooden trays for packaging will be eliminated as the milk will be cased immediately and the surplus stored ready for shipment. Labeling and packing machinery will be moved downstairs to provide an unbroken line from the filling of the cans to car loading or storage rooms. Cans will leave the sterilizer coolers to be dried, polished, labeled and cased in one operation.

While the leased machinery will require no outright investment, the outlay for accompanying improvements to the floor and conveyor systems will amount to about $50,000. The modernization will not affect the status of normal employment at the plant, according to the superintendent. The company added improvements to the extent of $60,000 last year with the installation of new boilers and other new milk processing equipment.

New London — G. A. Wells scored a record 605 series in the Borden Farmers league at Prahl's alleys last night, counting games of 207, 230 and 168. His second game also established a high mark in the loop and gave Lebanon high team game honors with a gross of 982. Minus their 87-pin handicap the quint still beat the former mark of the leading Bear Creekers to whom they lost two last night.

Riendl again paced the Beelers to retain second place with two wins over the Rounders when he cracked a 575 total with lines of 212, 209 and 154. Two victories over Black Creek gave the Skunk Hollowers the lead over Lebanon for third place with Decker's 541 count sparking the winners. Maple Creek out-kegled Ostrander two games in the lower brackets.

Eggers Log Taverns posted a new high team total of 2,567 pins in the Refreshment league as the quint took its first two games of the second half from the Verifines. New London — Regulations for the use of municipal rinks at all school grounds in the city were issued this week by R. M. Shortell, city recreation director.

At the Washington High school rink, the only large rink for high school and adult skaters, the use of sleds, playing tag and whip-cracking will be prohibited at the discretion of supervisors because of the hazardous conditions which may exist when the rink is over-crowded. Hockey will be permitted only in a special area provided for that purpose.

When grade school rinks are completed, and four such rinks are under construction at the public and parochial school grounds, all children below junior high school age will be restricted to the smaller rinks and will not be allowed at the high school rink. Work on the small rinks was interrupted this week by snow and mild temperatures though young skaters have been making use of them.

All boys and girls including senior high school students will be requested to leave all rinks at 9 o'clock on all nights preceding school days, from Sunday through Thursday. Supervisors will be in charge of the high school rink.
